AUSTRALIAN GENERAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.
ISSUE OF NEW SHARES.
The term for which this well-known and successful Institution was originally formed having nearly expired, a special general meeting was held on 19th July, and adjourned to 2nd August, when it was resolved to reconstruct the company for an extended term of ninety-nine years, and to alter the capital to the sum of sixty-thousand pounds (£60,000), in twelve thousand (12,000) shares of (£5) five pounds each, on which one pound ten shillings (£1 10s) is to be paid up.
Of these shares, eight thousand (8000) are allotted to the present shareholders, at a premium of ten shillings (10s) per share, to go to the formation of a reserve fund.
The remaining four thousand (4000) shares are offered to the public at a premium of one pound (£1) per share, to be in like manner carried to the reserve fund.
The paid up capital will thus be eighteen thousand pounds (£18,000), with a reserve fund of eight thousand pounds (£8000).
An important object sought for in these alterations is the introduction of an enlarged proprietary, embracing persons actively engaged in commercial pursuits, from whom an accession of business may reasonably be expected.
The premium may be looked on in some degree as a bonus, for the goodwill of a business in full working order at the time the proprietors enter upon it.
The career of the company has been very successful. During the last eight years an average annual dividend of seventeen (17) per cent. has been paid, and the original four pounds (£4) shares raised to five pounds (£5) by the capitalisation of profits, are now saleable at eight pounds ten shillings (£8 10s.).
It is proposed to limit the liability of shareholders to one hundred and twenty thousand pounds (£120,000), being double the amount of the subscribed capital.
An Act of Incorporation will be applied for during the ensuing session of Parliament.
The mode of payment will be as follows:—Ten shillings per share on allotment. Two pounds per share on first October, when the Company, as reconstructed, will take over the then existing business of the present Copartnery.
Applications for the four thousand (4000) new shares must be sent in on or before 12th September next, under cover to the Secretary.
Forms of application may be obtained at the Company's office, or from J. MULLENS, Esq., Sharebroker, 133, Pitt-street, Sydney.
HENRY T. FOX, Secretary.

PROSPECTUS of the CURRAWANG COPPER MINING COMPANY. (Limited).

Capital £60,000, in Shares of £1 each.
20,000 PAID-UP SHARES
To be retained by the Proprietors, and 40,000 to be allotted to the Public, to be paid for in calls of not more than 2s. 6d. each at intervals of not less than two months.

The Currawang Mine is on a freehold property of 322 acres, situated at Currawang, about twenty-two miles from Goulburn, and seven from Collector.

The first indication which presented itself of its mineral wealth was a large quantity of copper ore, near the surface, whereof a portion has been forwarded to Sydney. A sample of this surface copper ore, assayed at the Mint, shewed:—
Copper .... 27.90 per cent.
Lead .... 10.79 „
Silver.............. 9 oz. 16 dwts. per ton.

What has been done to test further the value of the property will be best understood from the annexed extract from the report of Mr. W. G. Walters, Mining Engineer and Superintendent of the Works.

The Gossan—more properly known as Red Oxide of Iron—through which the first shaft was sunk extends over a large portion of the ground, to a great depth in some places. Enough has been measured to show the existence of a very large quantity. Various assays made of this show it to be rich in gold and silver, averaging nearly 11 dwts. gold and 5 ozs. silver per ton. Two samples of it, one 56 lbs., and another 75 lbs. weight, after being dried, have been tried in Wheeler's patent amalgamating machine, showing results in the first case of Gold....... 10 dwts. 5 grs. to the ton.
Silver ..... 2 oz. 6 dwts. ditto.
In the second case—
Gold....... 14 dwts. 9 grs. ditto
Silver ..... 4 oz. 13 dwts. 22 grs. ditto.

The latter sample was part of 1¼ ton taken indiscriminately from different parts of the ground, and some from deeper sinking than the first. Supposing that in actual practice, on a large scale, an average of 7 or 8 dwts. or less of gold, and 3 ozs. of silver be procured by this process (and there is every reason for assuming, from the above experiments, it is likely to be more rather than less)—a very large yield of profit per week may be expected. Estimates showing the weekly profit, supposing the result of the second experiment could always be realised, are appended hereto, with certificates verifying the same. The 1¼ ton from which the 75 lbs. above-named were taken, was passed through the mill at the Mint, and showed a yield of gold at the rate of 7¼ dwts. to the ton. An analysis of the debris or tailings gave gold at the rate of 3¾ dwts. to the ton. This experiment, allowing for moisture, proves that the composition of the mass corresponded very nearly with the small portion tried by Wheeler's machine, which, it should be observed, saves what would be lost in tailings by the Mint process.

It is proposed in the first instance to erect the machinery necessary to extract the gold and silver. The operations as at present on the copper lode will also be continued, and machinery erected as occasion requires. A first call of 2s. 6d. per share will be made on allotment; other calls will not exceed 2s. 6d. each, nor be made at intervals of less than two months.

The working of the mine is being prosecuted with full vigour, over thirty men being employed. The interest of the company will date as from 1st July. The promoters will repay themselves the cost of land, £1000, leaving payment for all outlay incurred to above date in plant, dwellings, shafts, improvements, and about forty tons of copper ore (part in Sydney and part en route), entirely to the future consideration of the shareholders after declaration of a dividend.

It is anticipated that large profits will arise from working the Gossan, and it is intended that so much of such profits as may be necessary shall be employed in developing and working the copper mine, instead of making calls for that purpose.

It is proposed to place the management of the Company under the control of a Board of Five Directors, one of whom shall retire annually. The directors will be chosen by the shareholders generally, from among themselves, so soon as the first call shall be paid.

A deed of settlement of the Company, in terms of this prospectus, is in course of preparation by Messrs. Stephen and Stephen, solicitors of this Company.

The mine being within a reasonable distance of Sydney, intending applicants for shares are invited to inspect the property, and judge for themselves. The proprietors depend entirely on the merits of the property, and do not care to put forward names of influence to assist them in forming a company.

The proprietors undertake that the PROFITS of the first TWO YEARS shall, in the first instance, be devoted to the payment of a DIVIDEND at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, on the subscribed capital paid up, before taking a similar or any dividend whatever on their reserved shares, and they further undertake not to SELL any of their paid up shares until after a dividend has been declared.

As soon as a company is formed, an Act of Parliament will be applied for, to limit the liability of the shareholders.

Samples of gossan and ore may be seen at the office of the undersigned.

Allotments of shares will be made as far as practicable PRO RATA with due regard to applications for small numbers.

Applications for shares, in the form annexed, to be made on or before the 31st instant to the undersigned, by whom the property has been inspected, and from whom prospectuses, forms of application, and all particulars can be procured, and who will retain all applications unopened till the day of allotment.

Extract from Report of W. G. Walters, referred to in Prospectus:
Currawang Copper Mines,
Saturday Morning, July 29th, 1865.
To the Proprietors of the Currawang Copper Mines.
Gentlemen,—I beg to hand you my report of these Mines to the present date, work performed, and minerals developed.
The main shaft is now sunk to about 12 fathoms. In going down from surface we passed through Gossans and Red Oxide to a depth of about 16 feet, it then underlaid easterly out of the Shaft, we then sunk to 34 feet through decomposed Slate, Prian, and Mundic, then drove south 24 feet, when I came on the Red Oxide. Put a X cut east to intersect the Lode, and came on the hanging wall at 23 feet; in this X cut we passed through the Red Oxide and cut Black Ore and Mundic in several veins—dip of lode northerly, underlay easterly. I then drove south 12 feet on the course of the Lode in the direction of No. 2 Shaft, and cut Black Ore and Mundic in the bottom of drive, which still continues. Thus having proved without doubt the existence of Black Ore, I then sunk the Main Shaft to the 10-fathom level, crosscutted east 17 feet, and again intersected the Lode, passing through it to a well defined hanging wall; in the centre of the Lode we cut a vein of Black Ore and Mundic which averages in the depth of the drive 2 feet, but at the bottom 3 feet. In sinking the shaft to this drive we found the existence of Native and Red Oxides of Copper, which underlays with the Lode, and is now gone out of the shaft. We are now in course of sinking the Main Shaft for a 20 fathom level drive. No. 2 Shaft has been sunk to a depth of 43 feet 6 inches through decomposed Slate, Prian, and small seams of Gossan. At about 30 feet we struck the Lode on the foot wall, underlaying east, in which we came on a vein of Black Oxide and Mundic running out on the underlay to the east end of the Shaft, which from its course and underlay is a continuation of the vein cut in the Lode of the 10 fm. level—X Cut east from Main Shaft being a distance of 1 chain 45 feet. Two other Shafts are now being sunk, one to the south of No. 2 Shaft and the other to the north of the Main Shaft, which at a depth there can be no doubt, from present indications, the Lode will be again cut. We are now completing Mining and Assay Offices, Black-Smiths' and Carpenters' Shops, Nos. 1 and 2 Shafts roofed in, together with several Workmen's Huts, which have been built by the men with their own labour and the Company's Materials.
I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,
WM. GROSVENOR WALTERS, M.E., Manager.

Statement showing estimated product from the red oxide of iron, or gossan, from Currawang, as extracted by Wheeler's amalgamator:—
Calculation for one week's work—based on first experiment.
An engine of 10-horse power will drive eight Wheeler's pans and four concentrators, besides crushing the ore—the process of extraction is shown to occupy a maximum of two hours, giving in twenty-four hours twelve out-turns, each 4 tons, or 48 tons per day—288 tons per week.
The yield by first experiment gave as follows:—

Gold, 10 dwts. 5 grs. per ton, on 288 tons, 147 oz., at £3 15s.				£551	5	0
Silver, 2 oz. 6 dwts. per ton, on 288 tons, 662 oz. 8 dwts., at 5s.				165	12	0
				£716	17	0
* By the addition of chemicals to the value of 6d per ton, to facilitate the extraction of silver, it was estimated that the yield would be increased by 2 oz. to the ton, giving an additional 576 oz., at 5s	£144	0	0
Less cost chemicals	7	4	0	£136	16	0
Produce for the week				£853	13	0

Second experiment on ore taken indiscriminately from various parts of the lode, and from different depths. The yield shows a great improvement on the first and gives

Gold, 14 dwts. 9 grs. per ton on 288 tons, 207 oz., at £3 15s				£776	5	0
Silver, 4 oz. 13 dwts. 22 grs. per ton on 288 tons, 1352 oz. 8 dwts. at 5s	£338	2	0
Less cost of chemicals	7	4	0
				330	18	0
Produce for the week				£1107	3	0

This additional quantity is obtained in second experiment.

WEEKLY EXPENSES.

2 amalgamators at £7 10s	£15	0	0
2 assistants at £3	6	0	0
2 engineers at £5	10	0	0
20 labourers at £2	40	0	0
5 boys, at £1	5	0	0

CERTIFICATE OF MR. FARMER.
I hereby certify that I extracted the minerals named in the within estimates, and that the results are therein correctly stated, and that having carefully examined the calculations throughout, I find them perfectly correct in every particular. And I further certify that if similar ore exists in quantity, the extraction of the metals may be conducted on a large scale by my patented process, and with similar results.

PROFESSOR WATT'S CERTIFICATE.
I hereby certify, that I witnessed the first of the above experiments, and that assuming the mineral to be of uniform richness, and the mode of extraction to be equally efficient, the same results will be obtained on a large scale.

GLANMIRE GOLD MINING COMPANY. (Limited.)
Capital, £40,000, in 20,000 Shares of £2 each.

PROVISIONAL DIRECTORS:
George King, Esq. | G. W. Allen, Esq.
J. de V. Lamb, Esq. | T. C. Breillat, Esq.
J. L. Montefiore, Esq.
BANKERS:
The City Bank, Sydney.
The Commercial Bank, Bathurst.
SOLICITOR:
G. P. Slade, Esq., 2, Gresham-street, Sydney.
BROKER:
J. Mullens, Esq., 133, Pitt-street, Sydney.

This Company is formed for the purchase of the mineral lands of the Glanmire Estate, consisting of 5130 acres, more or less, or about eight square miles, within seven miles of Bathurst, with which it is connected by a good road.

The auriferous nature of the property is well known, and an extensive gold-field is already established. Over three hundred miners are at the present moment working the alluvial deposits, paying to the proprietors a monthly license fee of one pound each. Several co-operative sluicing companies have also been formed, with prospects of large returns, and a considerable income may be anticipated from this source.

The estate abounds in quartz reefs, which are as yet unexplored, but almost all the stones broken from the surface exhibit traces of gold to a greater or less extent. On reference to the map, it will be seen that the land is contiguous to the Kirkconnell proclaimed gold-field, on which, and closely adjacent to Glanmire are the celebrated Napoleon and Fontana reefs, the former being the richest that has yet been discovered in New South Wales. It is proposed to work the company's quartz reefs, or to lease them on tribute, as may seem most desirable.

A leading feature of the property is the existence of about seventy acres of ferruginous conglomerate, throughout which gold is extensively distributed, and whence immediate and enormous profits are anticipated. The gold is distributed throughout the deposit (which is exceedingly friable), in very minute proportions, recoverable only by crushing and amalgamation. The conglomerate known by the miners as "cement," is found in various parts of the estate, in one patch of which, near the junction of the Winburndale and St. Anthony's Creeks, it is proposed to commence operations. The various trials of this cement by the Mint, Professor Watt, and Mr. Farmer, together with the report of the engineer, may be seen at the broker's office.

It is estimated that machinery capable of crushing and amalgamating 500 tons per week can be erected for £4000, and it will be seen on reference to the report of the well-known engineer Mr. Combes, that a produce of five pennyweights to the ton will yield from this source a net weekly income of about £350, and the return from the gravel hills may be calculated at £170 per week net, making a total income by the appliance of simple and not costly machinery, of £27,000 per annum, subject only to the expenses of management.

Apart from the intrinsic value of the land, and consequent sale of many portions of it in allotments and small farms, it is believed that the sources of revenue indicated will return to the shareholders a dividend of not less than 10 per cent. quarterly.

The proprietors of the estate have such confidence in its value that they accept 5500 paid-up shares in part payment of the purchase money, and agree, moreover, to waive any claim to dividend thereon until the other shareholders shall be in receipt of a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The estate is freehold, and will be conveyed immediately after the formation of the Company. All rents, trade and mining license fees, and other revenues accruing after the 1st September next will be credited to the Company.

The purchase money is £27,000, of which £16,000 will be payable in cash, and the balance in shares, on conditions as above stated. This will leave a working capital of £13,000, which it is believed will be ample for all purposes.

The mode of payment will be as follows:—
Ten shillings per share on allotment.
Ten shillings per share in one month.
Ten shillings per share in three months from date of the second instalment.
And thereafter the balance as may be notified by the Board.
Shares will be allotted PRO RATA on all applications.

The company will be registered under the Act 24 Victoria, No. 21. "To limit the liability of mining partnerships," limiting the liability of shareholders to the amount of their shares only. The Deed of Settlement will be forthwith prepared under the instructions of the provisional directors.

The Provisional Directors will hold office until the first annual meeting, when the whole of them will retire, but will be eligible for re-election.

Reports and assays may be seen at the office of J. Mullens, Esq., 133, Pitt-street, from whom also prospectuses and forms of application may be obtained, and all applications for shares must be sent in to that gentleman on or before the 31st instant.

APPLICATION.
To the Provisional Directors of the Glanmire Gold Mining Company.
Gentlemen,—I hereby request that you will allot me shares in the above Company, and I hereby agree to accept the same or any less number which may be allotted to me, and to pay the deposit of 10s. on allotment, and the calls as specified in the Prospectus, and to sign the Deed of Settlement when required to do so.

AMALGAMATION BY MR. FARMER, AGENT FOR WHEELER'S PATENT AMALGAMATOR.
(Copy.)
Sydney, July 26th, 1865.
Mr. Montefiore.
Dear Sir,—I have worked the ore sent down from the Glanmire by Mr. Combes with Wheeler's Patent Amalgamator. I worked twenty pounds, which produced 5-66-100ths grains of gold, making 1 oz. 6 dwts. 9 grs. per ton.
Please find enclosed the button of gold produced from the 20 lbs. of ore.
Yours, respectfully,
T. SEELYE FARMER.

Report of Edward Combes, Esq., Government Mining Surveyor.
Glanmire, Bathurst, July 28th, 1865.
My Dear Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 8th instant, I now beg to forward you my report on the GLANMIRE GOLD-FIELDS ESTATE. I should have done this at an earlier period, could I have devoted sufficient time to the requisite examination of the country. I must, however, premise that, while I can with safety speak as to the portion examined, there still remains another portion comparatively unknown, on which I must further report at some future opportunity.

The Glanmire Estate is situated about seven (7) miles north-easterly of the town of Bathurst, and is connected therewith by a good road. It contains 5130 acres of land of fair average quality and well grassed, the greater portion of which is more or less auriferous. Annexed I send a plan made from actual surveys, where it will be seen the field naturally divides itself into two portions, one of which is granite, and the other of a schistose formation. The Winburndale Valley is wholly of the latter character, with quartz reefs showing themselves in every spur; whilst porphyritic and trappean rocks crop out at intervals. This valley at places breaks out into wide-spreading flats, with fine gullies running back into the ranges. All these are auriferous, and the gold of a coarser and heavier description than that found at St. Anthony's. The Winburndale rivulet is a considerable stream of never-failing water, with sufficient fall to be admirably adapted to the construction of water-races or sluicing purposes, or it may be made to supply the motive power for driving a battery of stamps. It is contemplated by a party of men who have formed themselves into a company for this object—to conduct water from the upper part of the Winburndale, by cutting a race somewhat in the direction shown by the dotted line on plan, for working some of the drift hills on the lower portion of the estate, by the process generally known as ground sluicing. I may here mention that these men, whom I have assisted in taking the necessary levels, have repeatedly told me, that from actual prospectings on these drift hills they are confident there is sufficent material to keep twenty sluice-heads in constant operation during a whole lifetime. The country at the lower part of St. Anthony's Creek is granitic, intersected with quartz veins and various metamorphic rocks. The junction of the granite and schist takes place, as nearly as I can judge, in the direction shown in sketch, crossing St. Anthony's about half a mile above the town. The upper part is of a similar character to the Winburndale, and abounds largely in quartz reefs.

The alluvial drift overlying the granite invariably contains gold in greater or lesser quantities, and forms itself into little hills and spurs running out on the flats. Some of these hills are over one hundred and fifty feet above the level of the creek, and the only one opened out at present yields wash-dirt that gives from one ounce to two pennyweights to the load. Between this hill and the town a defined lead has been lately discovered. Three claims have already struck gold heavily, the prospects ranging from five pennyweights nine grains (5 dwts. 9 grs.) to three pennyweights fifteen grains (3 dwts. 15 grs.) to the tin dish. There is a considerable amount of cemented matter in the hill workings, and in one claim that I particularly noticed, having a depth of twenty-nine feet, there was thirteen feet of stuff that would pay handsomely for washing. On St. Anthony's Creek, between the town and Government Point, three co-operative Sluicing Companies have now commenced work. They intend to operate by means of horses attached to Californian pumps, and from various prospectings are very confident as to the results. The breadth of the valley is in places very extensive, and the presence of auriferous cement, now proved to exist in the wash-dirt, will cause all the "tailings" to be eagerly sought after and crushed, as water cannot dissolve the ferruginous conglomerate, nor can either "cradle" or "long tom" save the fine gold.

A most important matter has lately come to my knowledge, in the discovery of extensive beds of this ferruginous conglomerate—called by the miners "Cement"—containing payable gold. One portion alone situated near, or immediately over the junction of the granite and schist, I should estimate as covering an area of from forty to fifty acres, and varying in thickness from four to eight feet. It also exists in patches over the entire length of St. Anthony's Valley, and also part of the Winburndale. The "over-burden" is composed of black vegetable mould, light loam, and sand, averaging about nine feet in thickness. The cost of raising and trucking to the crushing machine would not exceed 2s. 6d. per ton, and from rough trials made by myself I apprehend the yield would be at least five pennyweights to the ton. As the Winburndale rivulet adjoins this ground, the engine and stamping works might be erected on the spot.

A twenty-five horse power engine, driving twenty-four stamp-heads, with the necessary machinery for amalgamation, would easily get through five hundred tons per week, while the weekly expenses attendant on such a plant might be roughly approximated as follows:—

2 engineers at £3 per week	£6	0	0
2 stamp men at £2	4	0	0
20 tons of wood at 5s.	5	0	0
Oil, waste, &c.	0	10	0
Wear and tear, at 6d. per ton	12	10	0
Interest, 10 per cent. on £2600	5	0	0
	£33	0	0
Raising and trucking 500 tons at 2s. 6d.	62	10	0
Making a total of	£95	10	0

Supposing the cement to go 5 dwts. per ton, we have 125 oz. of gold, which at £3 14s. 6d. would amount to £465 4s. 6d. Thus leaving a balance on the week's work of £369 14s. 6d. It will readily be seen from this that one pennyweight per ton would nearly cover all expenses. I am confident that works, calculated to reduce five hundred tons of cement weekly, could be erected for a less sum than I mention, and the price per ton for raising is the actual TENDER of a party of men now working on the Gold Field. I have sent you a sample for assay, and I have also sent a parcel to Mr. Hebblewhite for the same purpose. Portions of the cement have also been broken from six different places by Mr. John Busby, manager of the Commercial Bank, Bathurst, and forwarded to the Mint for assay. Each of these was taken from much larger portions and were fair samples.

Of the quartz reefs—with which the place abounds—little is known, as nothing has been done further than breaking a few surface stones. Two claims have been taken up on a reef at the Surface Hill by parties who stated they had seen gold in the stone. I forward per Fox and Co., this day, samples from six different reefs, each weighing about thirty pounds, so that you may be enabled to form an opinion of its auriferous qualities. I have no hesitation in stating that some of the samples are as promising stones as anything I have ever seen. In quantity the reefs appear innumerable, and if we take into consideration the proximity of the well-known Napoleon Reef and Fontana's, which almost border on the Glanmire Estate, we may fairly conjecture that out of this vast number, some will be found highly remunerative.

During the last month, after the first week, about 250 miners were working, while at present there are over 300. They appear well satisfied, and it will be seen the gold returns will steadily increase. The quantity of gold purchased last week was nearly 150 ounces, the greater portion of which was obtained with the primitive appliance of tub and cradle; the washing stuff varying in thickness from two to thirteen feet. After next month, when the preliminaries for sluicing have been arranged, I think the number of diggers will be at no period less than four hundred for the next twenty years. A town, containing two hundred and ten allotments has been surveyed at Saint Anthony's Creek, and a number of the allotments are held by people having BUSINESS LICENSES. The inns and stores are of a permanent description, and prices for provisions and merchandise rule the same as in Bathurst.

A Gold-fields Office, with officers' quarters and stable, has been erected in a substantial manner; also barracks and stable for the police; a senior constable and two men being stationed on the ground.

Before closing my report I would again draw your attention to the subject of cement, as should this material be proved to contain 5 dwts. of gold to the ton, the profits of working would assume gigantic proportions. The cost of getting the material being so small, and the facility of crushing it so great, any company proposing to crush with its own machinery, could not possibly fail to realise good dividends. I think it therefore advisable that you at once give instructions for the withdrawal of that portion of the land from the mining public, and to form a company with sufficient capital to work with the most improved modern machinery on a sufficiently extensive scale.
I am, yours faithfully,
EDWARD COMBES.
J. L. Montefiore, Esq., Sydney.

SECOND REPORT OF EDWARD COMBES, ESQ.
Glanmire, via Bathurst, 8th August, 1865.
My dear Sir,—Since writing my last report I have more carefully examined the drift of which the Gravel Hills are formed, and am now clearly of opinion it would be exceedingly remunerative to work it by an extensive system of washing, using machinery constructed on the latest and best principles, and working on the face of the hill from top to bottom.

Hills that appear to be of precisely similar character extend nearly the entire length of St. Anthony's Creek, while the portion actually prospected is probably not much over fifteen acres. The drift varies in depth from thirteen to forty feet. Taking the low average of twenty feet, this extent would give about half a million of cubic yards, or sufficient to last seven years at the rate of 200 cubic yards per diem.

From the returns by the present system of washing, I should estimate the poorest of the ground to yield one pennyweight of gold to the cubic yard of wash dirt, while portions from the bottom will give from two pennyweights to two ounces.

If we take two hundred cubic yards per day, at the average of one pennyweight per cubic yard, we have ten ounces of gold per day, or sixty ounces per week. This, at £3 12s 6d per ounce, gives £217 10s per week, or £11,310 per annum.

The working expenses would be comparatively low, as in working with "hydraulic hoses" ten men would under ordinary circumstances be able to break and wash 300 yards per day. We will however say:—

15 men, at £75 per annum	£1125
1 engineer, at £3 per week	156
1 smith, at £3 per week	156
Deterioration of engine, pumps, and washing apparatus	200
624 tons of wood, at 5s	156
Interest on cost of plant, which I estimate at about £2000	200
Making a total of	£1993

and leaving a profit of £9317 per year.
It would be as easy, by extending the operations, to get through double or treble this amount of work, for to all appearance the quantity of wash-dirt is unlimited.
Believe me, yours, faithfully,
(Signed) EDWARD COMBES.
J. L. Montefiore, Esq., Sydney.

QUATRE BRAS WOOLWASHING ESTABLISHMENT.—To Settlers, Merchants, and others connected with the wool trade.

The wool season of 1864 and 1865 being nearly over, I hasten to make my acknowledgments to those kind friends who have so generously supported me through my first season in my new establishment, and to assure them nothing that I can do shall be wanting to prove my desire to carry out their wishes for the future.

Believing that the wool trade has the elements of progress in it, I intend to double the working power of the establishment, and thus make room for both old friends and new ones.

By thus making increased facilities, which I believe will be as beneficial to my constituents as myself, I shall be enabled to facilitate the return of the wool, either for shipment or otherwise, without any unreasonable detention, which has been too often the cause of complaint.

With thanks for all favours past,
I remain yours truly,
JOSEPH HAIGH.

August 19th.
Address—Mr. Joseph Haigh, General Post Office, 219.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Mr. JOHN A. TOUZEAU, Chemist, &c., &c., having studied the above art for some years in London and Paris with some of the best masters is now prepared to give instructions to amateurs, at a moderate charge, in both wet and dry Collodion processes, Printing, &c., and will, if required, procure for them PURE PHOTOGRAPHIC CHEMICALS, assuring them that the chief causes of their failure are owing to impurities.

Mr. T., being anxious that all who place confidence in him should realise their expectations, may state that great attention will be paid to the purity and quality of every article sold, as he examines each for himself, rather than accepting the assurances of those from whom they are obtained.

To those residing at a distance who cannot avail themselves of his personal services, he can communicate through the post, when the most approved recipes will be forwarded through the same channel, and from which, by a strict adherence to the formula and the directions accompanying them, it will be utterly impossible to produce inferior photographs.

Touzeau's newly-invented Extra Bromo-Iodised Collodion, for Negatives and Positives.—This Collodion is more highly sensitive than any yet offered to the public. It gives a perfectly bright and clean image, stands full exposure without fogging, and adheres firmly to the glass.

Price 18s per pound.

All letters from the country containing a Post Office Order for £2 will be promptly attended to, and all the requisite information conveyed by return of post.

Address, care of Messrs. Gordon and Gotch, 281, George-street, Sydney.

FIRE-BRICKS.—BRADFORD and CO., Balmain, have received the following certificates of the quality of their fire bricks.

City Iron Works.

I last week tested the two fire-bricks you sent me by placing them on the bridge of one of our mill furnaces, side by side with a Garnkirk and one of Sharp's English fire-bricks, and found that the colonial brick stood the action of fire equal to the Scotch or English. My intention is to use them in our works instead of the imported.
A. BROWN.

I beg to inform you that the sample fire-brick was put into the blast furnace, and stood the test without any sign of fusion.

TO SELL or LET, for a term of years, as may be agreed on, all those PREMISES now occupied by Korah H. Wills, and known as

WILLS'S HOTEL, BOWEN.

The proprietor wishes to be distinctly understood that, having acquired a moderate competency by attending to business during the last three years he has been in Bowen, he is now anxious to retire into private life.

The HOUSE contains twenty well-ventilated bedrooms, three sitting rooms, drawing-room, two large dining-rooms, taproom, with bagatelle table therein; first-class billiard room, with one of Thurston's best tables, which is fitted up in the latest approved style.

The KITCHEN is detached, and fitted up in first-class style with one of P. N. Russell's large size patent stoves, capable of cooking for 200 persons.

The CELLARAGE is extensive, and the Stables and Sale Yards replete with every requirement, at present unsurpassed by any similar establishment in Queensland.

The Premises are situated in the principal thoroughfare of Bowen, at the angle of George and Herbert streets, commanding a splendid view of about twenty miles of the bay and sea, with a balcony of about 150 feet long. The above hotel commands the most extensive cash trade in Bowen. This establishment combines the privacy of private life with all the advantages of a first-class hotel.

The salubrity of Bowen is now known and appreciated, and will doubtless, ere long, be the sanatorium of the East Indies.

Bona fide intending purchasers will be liberally dealt with, and any communication (from principals only) addressed to the undersigned, will meet with attention. The proprietor expects to be in Melbourne, via Sydney, in the beginning of October, for a short time.

The above opportunity to the persevering is seldom to be met with.

NEW ZEALAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AUCKLAND, August 18th.

THE items of news since the date of my last letter are rather obscure, and in a good many cases the news partakes more of the character of rumour than of certain intelligence.

With respect to the gold discoveries about which I wrote in my last letter, I have received full particulars from the head of the party—the person who is in fact entitled to the reward long ago offered for the discovery of an alluvial gold-field here. His great difficulty, and that which threatens to render useless in the mean time a discovery which might be of the greatest use in removing the difficulties that beset the northern part of the colony, was, as I think I mentioned, the variety of native proprietors and the variety of feelings amongst them. The only place he and his party could work was close to the bank of the Thames River. The gold dug here they washed in the rudest possible way, owing to the jealousy shown by the natives of the importation of any regular implements. What was got in this way was much mixed with iron sand, the fully washed metals having a brownish colour which could only be accounted for on a close examination of the stuff. The evil of this is that while the party found here fine gold in dust, whenever they dug sufficient to pay very well they felt sure that inland, towards the quartz ridges, the gold would be found of a heavier character. This land they could not even set foot upon, as the owners did not wish it. Another drawback is the fact that even when they are allowed to work, the condition on which leave is obtained is that everything that looks like a lump belongs to the lord of the soil, which of course takes the gilt off the profits. The chief of the party has gone back, however, bent upon sticking to the work, in the hope that at a favourable moment he may induce some of the inland proprietors to let him try to work their land. The news and the petitions of the discoverers has of course gone to the South, but it is hardly hoped that much notice will be taken by the Government, as any arrangement would involve much trouble in the making, and might open a door for trouble with the natives hereafter. The natives who have been with the digging party invariably refer them to the country up the river, as the place where gold may be looked for with certainty, saying that it has been often picked up in nuggets, which have been used for the purchase of guns and powder. This view tallies with that of the well-known geologist Dr. Von Hochstetter, who indicated that part of the country as the one likely to be very productive of gold.

From the East Coast we hear of great preparations being made by the Arawas and one or two other friendly tribes, to avenge the death of Mr. Fulloon, who was nearly related to many of them. It would be rash, however, to pay too much attention to the parade now exhibited, as nothing can be more deceptive than such appearances when natives are concerned. A very moderate amount of utu, or payment, frequently suffices for family wrongs such as this seems to be esteemed, and unless a heavy loss is somehow inflicted at first on one or other party, very little is perhaps more likely to result from it than a great deal.

One good thing has already resulted from the rousing of the whole Arawa tribe in the release of the chief, Adam Clarke, and his people from the position of danger in which he was placed at the time when his people were eaten by the successful enemy. There is no doubt that a body of eight hundred such allies as the Arawas are, might be made of the greatest possible efficiency in bringing the New Zealand war to an end if they were properly managed. Left as they now are entirely to their own impulses they are absolutely useless, and may even do more harm than good by their way of conducting the war, which they naturally regard as being left in great measure to their own discretion.

The news from Wanganui embraces another of the ambushes so painfully familiar in the story of New Zealand campaigns. The victim in this case was an ensign in the 50th Regiment, named Waring, stationed at the Patea River, between Wanganui and Taranaki. The unfortunate young officer went, it appears, up the river a short way to shoot ducks, in a canoe accompanied by two privates. They were fired upon suddenly from the brushwood on the bank and the officer killed on the spot, while the soldiers were both severely wounded. They succeeded, however, in reaching the shore somewhat lower down the river, and crawled into camp in safety, so far as further injury was concerned. Unfortunately, the body of the unfortunate Mr. Waring has fallen into the hands of the rebels.

There are also rumours of a severe engagement in which fifty natives were killed, but the report is of very doubtful authenticity; the principal consideration in its favour being that the increased temerity of the Maories in that district—as indeed everywhere—renders an attack upon any of our camps or redoubts by no means an improbable occurrence.

The state of things in the province of Auckland, combined with the tone of the Government and of the Southern majority in the Assembly, is leading daily to a stronger development here of the separation spirit—a feeling not at all lessened by the discovery that Sir George Grey's promised argument in support of the Auckland petition have been stopped by the Southern Ministry now in power.

It is more than probable, so far as I can gauge the temper of the people, that the separation of the Parliament after the session if it leaves things in their present critical state here, will be the signal for some steps being taken of a kind to render separation of some sort almost an essential for the colony.

From papers to the same date, per the Barwon steamer, we quote as follows:—

The Daily Southern Cross of the 16th, publishes the following statement by Mr. Bennett White, as to

THE WHAKATANE TRAGEDY.

Mr. B. White arrived in Auckland yesterday by the Egmont, from Tauranga, and was heartily congratulated by his many friends on his wonderful escape. He says:—

The schooner Kate left Maketu on the morning of the 21st of July, having on board Mr. James Fulloon; Mr. Robinson, late chief mate of the Waitemata; Mr. Pringle, the master of the ship; a seaman who was called Ned, but whose surname I do not know; Alexander Campbell; a half-caste; and Tira, formerly my storekeeper at Whakatane. We arrived off Whakatane the same evening, and sent a boat ashore to see if it was safe for us to take the vessel in. Tira and Campbell went in the boat. The next morning Tira and Campbell returned, bringing with them my son, a boy twelve years of age. They told us to stand out to sea as it was not safe to go in. A cutter called the Maruiwi, belonging to the Arawas at Maketu, had been seized, and the crew taken prisoners, and the people about Whakatane were excited about it. We immediately made sail, but there being no wind the Kate made very little progress. About ten minutes after our boat arrived, a boat was put off from the shore with twelve men. They came on board, and appeared quite friendly. Mr. Fulloon said, "Why did you bring arms with you?" They said that the Hauhau told them to do so, referring, I suppose, to Horomona, the Taranaki prophet, who was then on shore. Mr. Fulloon showed them his rifle which they took to look at, and would not return. They then went away. About half an hour after the boat returned, with the same men. All this time the vessel was under way, but making very little progress. We had no arms, except a double-barreled gun, loaded with duck-shot, so that we could not prevent them coming on board. The man who appeared to be leader I know. His name is Parahara, and amongst the others were Hekara, Hoani Pururu, and Awera, a chief belonging to Otamaura, a place about five miles from Whakatane. There were in the boat's crew one or two Taranaki natives. After they came on board, Mr. Fulloon and myself went down into the cabin, and sat talking for a few minutes. We then heard several shots, and I said, "My God, Fulloon, they are killing the men on deck?" Mr. Fullon was at this time in his berth, when a shot came down and struck him in the hand. I said, "We shall all be killed now." Mr. Fulloon looked at the wound, from which the blood was streaming, and then at me, but never spoke a word. I ran up the ladder, and when I got on deck I hauled the slide over the cabin. Parahara was standing laughing, with his arms akimbo. I said, "You have killed all the Europeans on deck?" He answered, "Yes," still laughing. I said, "It is the worst day's work ever you did, then," and added, "What are you going to do with me?" He said, "Pai Marire! Pai Marire! You have been fired at three times, and the gun would not go off—God has saved you!" I saw the bodies lying in a heap on the deck. I think they had all been shot—at least I saw no tomahawk wounds. During this time the slide was over the cabin, and no shots were fired. I was ordered to get into the boat along with Campbell, who also, I was told, had been saved because the gun pointed at him would not go off. We sat in the boat for about five minutes, and then three men came in and put us ashore at Otamaura. I did not hear any shots fired at Mr. Fulloon. He must have been killed after I landed. The natives told me not to go to Whakatane or I should be killed, for the Ngatipukikaos and the Whanauapanuis were determined to have my life, as I had been the cause of Fulloon's death by bringing him down. At this place I met Kuni, a Fiji native, who had been in my service. He told me he had seen Fulloon's body buried. A bullet had entered the chest, and another the side. I think all the bodies were buried without being mutilated. I was told that Fulloon's death had been decreed in consequence of the part he took in the Eclipse affair. I stayed at Otumaura for four days, when I told the people I wanted to go to Rangitaike, where I had a store, to get some clothing. They gave me a canoe, and I started with Kuni and his wife. We struck across the ranges for Maketu. Kuni had four days' provisions, but we were seven days toiling over the ranges, and through the swamps and forest. We had to feed often on the roots of the flax plant. We came out on the beach close to Maketu, and had we been twelve hours later we should all have been killed, for the natives, suspecting I had gone to Maketu, came to intercept me, but were too late. I saw the fires of the party on the path I had crossed over. These were the doings of the people I had lived amongst for twenty years.

I shall never forget the kindness I received at Maketu; also from Kuni and his wife, who risked their lives for me.

FURTHER OUTRAGES BY THE PAI MARIRES. PREPARATIONS FOR FIGHTING AT WHAKATANE.

The New Zealand Herald of the 15th, publishes the following additional items from the East Coast:—

At Wangamata the Pai Mariries went to the house of a settler named Graham, and demanded money, and upon being refused they knocked the man down, kicked him, and otherwise illtreated him in a most brutal manner. Whilst lying senseless on the floor they ordered his wife to open the chest containing the money, which she refused to do, and the poor fellow received further ill-treatment from his assailants. After taking the rings off Mrs. Graham's fingers the wretches went outside the house to korero and decide upon further atrocities, and in the meantime Graham and his wife escaped from the whare into the bush, where they still were when we last heard, although completely surrounded by the natives. The natives then took possession of the whare and all its contents, and the place soon became a complete wreck. Graham is spoken of as being a very harmless, inoffensive man, and well liked by the friendly natives. He is a shipbuilder by trade, and was engaged building a cutter for Captain Sellars when this occurred at Wangamatta.

Three hundred friendly natives had left Maketu in canoes, for the purpose of going to Whakatane, to assist Webster in getting revenge for Fulloon's murder. Another detachment of 400, under the chief Hata, had also gone from Cape Runaway to Whakatane for the same purpose. 200 of the Uriweras were also on their way from places inland of Ruotoko.

Great preparations were being made at Whakatane for fighting; an enormous pah, said to be the largest ever erected in New Zealand, had been thrown up at Otamauro, and the greatest excitement prevailed in the surrounding districts. Fighting was expected to commence every day, and the friendly natives were determined on revenge.

ARAWA EXPEDITION TO WHAKATANE.

Immediately on the arrival of Mr. White at Maketu, the Civil Commissioner there, Mr. T. H. Smith, made arrangements to despatch a party of the Arawas to arrest the murderers of Mr. Fulloon. A short time since, upon the representations of Mr. Smith, a number of rifles were sent to Maketu, by Mr. Mackay, for the purpose of arming the Arawas. These were issued to them, and they received warrants authorising the arrest of the men named by Mr. White. Ninety men left Maketu yesterday week, to take the road along the coast to Matata, while a body of three hundred were to march from Rotorua inland to Rangitaike. If Te Wepiha and other chiefs of Whakatane assist the Arawa, we may expect to hear soon of the capture of the murderers.

As showing the utter breakdown of Sir George Grey's famous scheme of native government, we may state that many of the men who have been foremost in these deeds of blood on the East Coast were assessors or members of runangas at the first appointment of these officials. Hoani Poururu was appointed member of the runanga of Whakatane, on the recommendation of Mr. Smith, and Te Hura was appointed as an assessor.—Southern Cross, August 15.

ENSIGN WARING, 50TH REGIMENT, SHOT BY MAORIES.

An extra published by the Wanganui Chronicle on the 10th instant gives the following particulars of the occurrence:—

On Tuesday morning, at 9 o'clock, Mr. Waring, of the 50th, went out duck-shooting on the Patea, in a canoe, along with two soldiers. They went up the river a bit, and were returning, when, at a narrow part of the river with wooded banks on both sides, a fire was opened on the canoe from the bank near which it was, being only about six yards distant. Ensign Waring was shot through the head, and fell out of the canoe into the water. The men recovered the body and dragged it into the canoe, which they hastily paddled to the opposite bank, the Maories meanwhile firing at them. One of the shots took effect on the shoulder of one of the men, and on their reaching the bank they got ashore and made for the camp, leaving in the canoe the body of their officer, which the Maories have taken away. The bush on the bank was so thick that the party in the canoe never saw their assailants. The deceased officer was a young man apparently about twenty-four years of age.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The Herald of the 16th says:—Sir George Grey, we hear, may be shortly expected in Auckland, whither he will return for the purpose of taking active measures on the East Coast for the arrest of the actual murderers of the Rev. Mr. Volkner. This determination was come to before the news could have arrived in Wellington of the horrible massacre of Mr. Fulloon and the captain and crew of the Kate at Whakatane.

From the Southern Cross of same date, we learn that a letter was received in Auckland yesterday from a gentleman in Wellington likely to have access to good sources of intelligence, in which the writer stated that the Government had resolved to send a body of 500 men to occupy a position on the East Coast. This resolution was come to before anything was known of the murder of the crew of the Kate.

The Wanganui correspondent of the Southern Cross states that, notwithstanding the fate of Wereroa pah, there is nothing at that station but "war and rumours of war. Armed natives are showing themselves in the direction of Waingongoro, where Lieutenant-Colonel Butler, 57th, is stationed. A company of the 50th is now on its way from Wanganui to this station, and on its arrival a reinforcement will be sent towards Lieutenant-Colonel Butler's camp, and will be stationed at Manuwapu.

We take the following from the Wanganui Chronicle of the 5th instant: Yesterday a message came in from Colonel Trevor, at Wereroa, that a tunic and two medals which had belonged to Corporal Kelly of the 57th, who, it will be remembered, was killed with Lieutenant Tragett and others near Taranaki, in May, 1863, had been found concealed in a whare at a village three miles from Wereroa. The medals accompanied the letter. There were marks on the tunic of two other medals, but they have not been found.

Alluding to the late gallant defence of Pipiriki by Major Brassey and his gallant little garrison, short both of ammunition and food, the Wanganui Times thus writes:—"For some time past the arch-rebel, Topia, has had his eye on this position, and naturally enough, determined to regain it if possible. From four to five hundred natives surrounded it, fully determined to put every one of its inhabitants to death, should cruel fate give them into their hands. For nearly a fortnight did the rebels try their utmost to gain the position, but not only did the heroic defenders repulse their assailants, but gave them such a warm reception, that they eventually drew off. What must the feelings of the beseiged have been, knowing as they did that if they fell into the hands of the rebels, they would be slain as dogs and their blood licked up with fiendish glee by the conquerors. And what has produced this savage feeling? Nothing but the false mercy and misplaced leniency, which has too often been shown to the prisoners which have fallen into our hands."

The Taranaki Herald, of the 12th, mentions that Colonel Colville's force has been encamped at the Warea pending negotiations between Mr. Parris and some natives between Opunaki and Warea, who have treated for peace and have acceded to our terms. Hakaraia and Heremaia, of Moutoti, are at the head of the natives who have come in, who have been recently living with their hapu at an inland village named Manihi. Hakaraia before the war carried the overland mail between this town and Wanganui. These natives appear heartily tired of war with the pakeha. It is said that amongst the killed on the 1st are Te Meiha (Big Jack) and Te Rana (Lander). The natives engaged in the affair that day have retired into the backwoods.

The following extract from the Civil Commissioner's report, dated Tauranga, January 10th, laid before the Assembly, will be of interest. Speaking of the return and surrender of certain natives in that district, the report says:—"The cause of this sudden move on the part of these natives was from no deisgn on their part to provoke hostilities with us. But they suffered themselves to be persuaded by the Pai Marire advocates from Waikato, who have been very busy amongst them, backed by the repeated warnings and influence of Hori Tupaea, with the belief that the pakehas would certainly be destroyed, and that they would meet the same fate if they continued to associate with us. There is a deep design in the whole movement. From information I have received from these returned natives I have not the least doubt in my own mind that the Waikatos are determined to use any means to drag the New Zealand tribes into one general war. Kingism has failed, and they are now trying to work upon the superstitious minds of their countrymen—not a very difficult task at any time."

Writing on the same subject in a subsequent letter, the Commissioner states:—"It is said to be the intention of the principal men (Ngaiterangi) to take up a permanent residence inland, only visiting the sea-coast occasionally. This looks like establishing a nucleus or gathering-point inland for the people on any future occasion. From all that I can learn, I think there is but little doubt that the Ngaiterangi had no hostile intention when they went out. It is equally certain that the Waikato, acting through Tupaea, had an object in drawing these people away, and that this object was to arrange a place for future operations. The proposition, however, fell through for want of support. This transpired at a meeting at Whareputanga. Tupaea and Te Tiu (Jew) Tamehana are very active in propagating the Pai Marire superstition. They are now at Te Pake, in the neighbourhood of Maketu. They appear to have met with great success. They are very few here who remain faithful to the Christian faith. Most have either abandoned it, or taken up with the Pai Marire. Many of the natives who have returned to their homes have brought with them their Pai Marire worship, and they practice it in spite of all remonstrance. This may be considered at first sight a matter for ridicule rather than serious remark, but when it is remembered that this Pai Marire is a system set up in direct antagonism to the Queen's Government (at least it is so viewed by the natives who know most about it), I think it ought to be considered. Many of the natives who have had no part in this matter have urged upon me the necessity of taking some further notice than mere remonstrance, and have recommended that they should be compelled to give it up, and that if no notice is taken of it our forbearance will be misconstrued into indifference, or perhaps fear of the Pai Marire deity. But I have hitherto cautioned the natives against any violent proceeding."

The following is an extract from the letter of a native assessor, dated 6th July, relative to Pai Maririam:—"When all their crops are gathered, they will return inland, and will then work evil towards us (you and us). They call us young pigs. Friends, we are as it were in the grave. Great is the defiance of these people. We know their design. O, I am overwhelmed with the smitings of my familiar friend. They are as young lions desiring to catch the prey. Friends, our efforts (expostulations) to stop this (Pai Marire) cease. We now leave it to you.

MACLEAY RIVER.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

AUGUST 1st.—During the calamitous flood which swept over this district last year, the bridge at Christmas Creek was carried away. The circumstance was represented to the Government, and the sum of nine hundred pounds was voted by Parliament for the construction of a new bridge. This work was completed last week, and on Monday the bridge was formally opened. It is a very handsome structure, and has every appearance of being solid and substantial. A very excellent luncheon, to which between forty and fifty persons sat down, was provided by the contractor, Mr. Alexander Cochrane. After the cloth was removed a number of toasts were proposed, with the customary accompaniment—very complimentary speeches.

The weather has been remarkably fine of late, but the mornings and nights have a large proportion of the ingredient frost. More than once my attention has been called to ice half an inch thick, the most respectable article of the kind I ever saw in this district. Many have never beheld snow, but this is a severe winter, and if we go on at the same rate, in 1870, skating will not be a novelty.

The public are complaining about the delay in putting up to auction the lease of the ferry dues, and there being no decision as to where the punt is to run. The small steamer Firefly, which for the last four months has been unemployed, is again plying up and down the river.

7th August.—We almost daily read in your shipping news of vessels unloading, loading, and going to sea within a very short period, showing that there are people on this side of the globe who practise economy in the expenditure of minutes. Similar promptitude and dispatch is sometimes observed here. Last week the Barwon schooner arrived with a cargo from Sydney, ran up the river to Shark Island, landed freight, and within twenty-four hours after entering Heads was full to the hatches, outside the Macleay, and on her voyage to Sydney.

The weather has undergone a complete change. During the last three days a great deal of rain has fallen, and low heavy clouds indicate much more.

THE POPULATION OF CAPE TOWN.—The South African Advertiser of 8th July states that, in 1810, Cape Town had a population of 5000 whites; which in 1818 increased to 7400. An official census taken in 1826 showed all classes together to number 18,673. A municipal census in 1844 showed an advance to 22,543; another taken by Mr. De Lima in 1854 showed 24,590; while a third municipal census taken in 1862, under the direction of Mr. John Noble, indicated a total of 30,245, consisting of 16,422 whites, and 13,723 coloured people. Since then, from the removal of railway labourers and artisans to the works at Tulbagh Kloof, and from emigration to New Zealand, there has been a considerable falling off in the population. From the completed population returns for the whole colony, as recently laid before Parliament, it appears that the exact figure set down for Cape Town is 27,219, of whom 14,162 are whites; and that for Cape Town and Cape Division together is 47,447, of whom 23,910 are Europeans—or about one-third of the whole white population of the Eastern Province. The total population of the Eastern Province is 247,057 against 233,938 in the West; while the European population of the East is only 71,078 against 102,611 in the West.

There is said to be an undertaker in Newbern who is also an embalmer, and when his wife died, he exercised his art upon her remains in his best style, and now keeps her in his room to exhibit as a specimen of his art, tapping her upon the forehead to show its firmness, and saying. "This is all there is of my poor Betsy."—New York Paper.

WAR IN SOUTH AMERICA.

(From the Times Correspondent.)

Parana River, April 25.

PASSING events in this part of the world are of such a nature as to make one believe that the Virgilian stave of "Arma virumque cano" might be chanted here in perpetuity, for no sooner had the civil war in the Uruguayan Republic been put a stop to by the success of Flores, aided by the Brazilians, than the battle trumpet is sounded in the upper part of our river.

General Lopez, the President in name, but in reality the Emperor and Dictator of Paraguay, has invaded the Brazilian territory in his neighbourhood, taken possession of Coimbra, Albuquerque, Curamba, San Lorenzo, Dorados, Miranda, and Nivac, and finished these achievements by laying hold of the diamond mine territory of Matto Grasso.

On the 13th of last month an extraordinary session of Senators and Deputies was summoned at Asunicon, the capital of Paraguay, to hear the President's Address. This message, which is a composition of very chaste and dignified style, although regarded by many persons as somewhat tinctured with special pleading, sets forth the recent sanguinary events in the Uruguay and violation of equilibrium in the River Plate as causes of rapture with Brazil and coolness with the Argentine Republic. It charges Brazil with having violated the Treaty of 1850, for the maintenance of nationalities in this part of South America, by allying itself with the rebel band of Flores. It alludes to the Paraguayan Government having offered to join with the Argentine in mediating between Brazil and Uruguay, at the same time complaining that the Brazilians still carried on the war without condescending to take notice of the offer made by President Lopez. This, of course, as the message says, outraged the national honour and dignity as well as compromised the security and integrity of the Paraguayan Republic. It further states that the territory of Matto Grosso, of which Lopez has now taken possession, had been usurped by Brazil, although belonging to Paraguay by virtue of discovery, possession, and treaties; and that an additional justification for taking it—if such were needed—existed in the fact of Brazil having collected these great military resources to prepare new inroads on Paraguay.

Another point, which is touched upon with much apparent sensitiveness in the message is, that the Paraguayan Government, foreseeing that a conflict with Brazil might take place on the eastern frontier of the former country, solicited permission from the Argentine Cabinet to cross the territory of Corrientes when events might so oblige. The Argentine Government, however, not only refuses this permission (while granting a free permission by river to the Brazilian squadron, bound for Paraguay), but protests against the Paraguayans crossing the territory of Missiones, which is behind Corrientes, and over which Lopez proposed to pass in order to invade Brazil on its own soil.

In two days after this message had been delivered, the Paraguayan Senate conferred on President Lopez the dignity of a field-marshal. The salary proposed to be attached to the post—namely, 60,000 silver dollars per annum—he peremptorily refused, but accepted a sword of honour, and agreed to a proposal made by Senator Riveros, that he should lead the army in person.

Meanwhile every place up and down this river was alive with rumours and conjectures. It was said that Lopez could raise an army of 60,000 men; that he had been for many years amassing the most extensive and most perfect collection of European armaments; that the fort of Humayita (which must be passed on ascending the Paraquay river to arrive at Asuncion) was furnished with 120 guns of large calibre, many of them being Lancasters, and manned by 8000 troops; that the river at the southern side of Humayita was spiked after the Chinese fashion, so as to obstruct the ascent of the Brazilian squadron; that Lopez, despite of the objections raised by the Argentine Government, in its desire to continue neutral, had determined to cross over Corrientes or Missiones into Brazil.

The truth of some of these opinions has been already realised. Exactly a month had passed away after the reading of the before-mentioned message—i.e., on the 13th of the present, when a fleet of five Paraguayan war steamers came down from Asuncion, and captured the Argentine war steamer 25th de Mayo, as well as the Government hulk Gualeguaya, both of which were at anchor in the harbour of Corrientes. The attack was so sudden and unexpected, having been made at a quarter-past 7 o'clock in the morning, that no preparations could be adopted for defence against such an unequal force, and the 25th de Mayo was taken. Some of the Argentine newspapers describe the capture of this ship as having been effected by treachery, and that thirty of its crew were killed in cold blood. This may be set down as an account to be taken cum grano salis.

Coincident with the arrival of the war steamers, the city, being perfectly unprepared for such an invasion, was occupied by 5000 Paraguayan infantry and a like number of cavalry. These troops had come overland from Paraguay. The Argentine Governor, Senor Lagrana, at once issued two decrees,—the first ordering that all Argentines of Corrientes, from the age of seventeen to sixty, should present themselves on horseback at the general encampment; and the second declaring every man to be a traitor to his country who would, in the slightest degree, give assistance to the Provisional Government set up by the invaders in the province of Corrientes.

The steamer which brought down this intelligence carried likewise information of Lopez being at the head of 20,000 men, advancing down the bank of the Parana, simultaneously with the advance of his fleet. But this last piece of news seems to me to need confirmation.

On the very day succeeding the arrival at Buenos Ayres of a despatch from Governor Lagrana, of the province of Corrientes, President Mitre issued the following:—

"PROCLAMATION OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC TO HIS FELLOW COUNTRYMEN.

"Fellow countrymen,—At a time of perfect peace, and in violation of the faith of nations, the Government of Paraguay has declared war against us by invading our territory with an armed band, treacherously seizing two steamers of the Argentine squadron and firing on our defenceless people.

"The gauntlet having been thrown down to us without our seeking it, even after we had done as much as propriety would permit to avoid the strife by preserving that neutrality which has been the rule of our politics, we shall now answer war with war; and we shall do this with all the energy and power which is befitting the glorious antecedents of the Argentine nation, now grievously wounded in its honour and attacked in its stability.

"Fellow citizens! Relying opportunely on the manliness of the Argentine people, and on your invincible decision, the country has until now strictly kept itself in peace, faithfully preserving its neutrality, because it was certain that when the moment of danger arrived, all, without exception, would come forward to occupy their posts round the national banner, resolved to comply with their sacred duties.

"Argentines! The moment has arrived. In the name of the country and by the authority of the law I call upon you to take your places as citizens and soldiers of a free State whose banner has been always accompanied by justice and victory.

"Fellow countrymen! I can safely assure you of victory, because I feel a confidence in the powerful elements that the nation can raise up, under the help of Providence, with your courage and patriotism.

"After this noble effort peace will be more solid, more glorious, and more productive, and you will be able to continue with greater energy the work of progress in which you have been interrupted by an aggression as barbarous as it is traitorous.

"For my part, it is unnecessary to tell you that I shall discharge the important duties which the country and the Constitution in these circumstances impose upon me, and trusting in that Heaven which protects the justice of our cause, as well as in your generous patriotism, I shall not rest until I restore to you the peace which has been treacherously torn from you—until I see vindicated, as is befitting, the honour of the Argentine nation.

"Your fellow countryman and friend,

"MITRE.

"Buenos Ayres, April 16."

Besides the foregoing, President Mitre and his Cabinet have proclaimed the Republic in a state of siege, in conformity with the 86th Article of the Constitution. They have likewise called out the National Guard over the whole Republic—ordering the Minister of War to see that each province furnishes its contingent. Another decree is published, simultaneously with the preceding, which enjoins immediate enrolment in the province of Buenos Ayres of eight battalions of the National Guard Infantry, with 500 stand of arms to each battalion. Of these, four battalions are to be for defence in the country districts, and four in the city. Following this is another notification by the President and Minister of War, declaring the National Army of cavalry and infantry belonging to Buenos Ayres province to be at once officially organised. Concurrent with the publication of these documents, the Minister of Finance has handed over to the War Department the sum of 10,000,000 paper dollars (130 of these may be considered as equal to a pound sterling) for the purpose of carrying on the campaign.

The National Government has, therefore, not lost a moment in setting forward active preparations for a war that has been forced on it—not by civil or social disunion within its own boundaries, but by what every impartial person considers the unjustifiable aggression of a neighbouring State.

While I am writing this letter there is a fleet of ten Brazilian war steamers, with 2000 men on board, on their way up this river to Paraguay. In a few days the Brazilian Admiral, with five steamers more and an additional 1000 men, is expected to follow, unless, indeed, the new alliance of Brazilians and Argentines should change the programme. From the fact of Lopez being on his way down the river to meet his enemies, I have no doubt we shall soon hear of a brush.

To explain the rationale of South American politics is as much out of my own power as it has been of every person with whom I have conversed during my some years' residence in this part of the world. Speculation and prophecy on political matters are as rife here as they are with you in England, if not more so; and, although I do not pretend to be an expert in either, I shall give you a few items that are freely discussed among us.

Some predict that the joined forces of Brazilians and Argentipes will soon "whip" Lopez and the Paraguayans, as foreshadowed in General Mitre's proclamation, while others surmise it as extremely probable that Lopez would not have attempted a descent into Argentine territory unless he had an understanding with General Urquiza, Governor of Entre Rios, and former President of the Argentine Republic. A few wiseacres who assume to be in the confidence of the Argentine Cabinet aver that a palpable difference of opinion existed between Mitre and Urquiza on the subject of the recent war in Uruguay; and this, too, while Urquiza professes before all the world to give his loyalty to the Argentines. The geographical fact of Uruguay, Entre Rios, Corrientes, and Paraguay being on the same side of our river might lead to an inference that the leaguing of all these—should such a thing come to pass—may result in very serious damage to the opposite side of the Argentine Republic.

For reasons which I do not at present deem expedient to record, although disclaiming any status among the soothsayers of whom I have just written, I am afraid that this war will not terminate either so speedily or satisfactorily as General Mitre in his proclamation anticipates.

April 28.

The Argentine National Government is following up the acts emanating from its Cabinet by sending to the seat of war the steamers Pavon, Buenos Ayres, and Pampero, in convoy of a number of small ships, having about 1000 men on board. But of what use can these be, even with the ten steamers and 2000 Brazilian troops, against the force of Lopez?

General Urquiza has declared his concordance with the Argentine National Government, and has announced that he is collecting all the troops of his province to aid them. This step has caused much satisfaction to those parties who up to the present having been in doubt of his policy.

Another event has given great pleasure to all people who know the necessity of immediate action on the part of the Argentines in this war. As soon as the news had arrived in Buenos Ayres, noisy crowds, with bands of music, paraded the city, and one of these groups came to General Mitre's house. Their shouts of "Muera Paraguay" and "Viva la Republica Argentina" were, of course, tremendous. But the General advanced to the door, and, waving his hand for silence, thus addressed them:—

"Fellow Citizens,—I do not like such noisy demonstrations. I prefer working to talking or shouting. Go to your homes, get ready to be mustered in the barracks within twenty-four hours, on march in fifteen days, and within the walls of Asuncion in three months."

Besides the troops and the impregnable fort at Humayita already mentioned, the Paraguayans have a fleet of twenty-one steamers, besides three brigs of war, and a number of flat boats, carrying one Armstrong 80-pounder each. Of these ten have been built at Asuncion, some have been recently purchased and others lately captured from the Brazilians and Argentines.

Of the Paraguayan army I take the following account from the Buenos Ayres Standard:—

"At a rough estimate the land forces may be set down at 60,000—veteran troops, 18,000; militia, on active service, 22,000; reserve, 20,000. They are distributed in the following order:—infantry, 45,000; cavalry, 10,000; artillery, 5000; and compose four corps d'armee—army of the North, in Matto-grosso, 8000 men; grand army to invade Corrientes and Rio Grande, 26,000; 3rd corps at Cerro Leon, 12,000; frontier garrisons, 14,000. The first is commanded by Colonel Barrios, brother-in-law to Lopez, the 2nd by General Robles (the only brigadier in Paraguay), the 3rd under the immediate command of President Lopez, and the 4th under various commanders in different places. The estimates of artillery are dubious and contradictory—from 300 to 500 field pieces and battery guns; the chief officer is Colonel Wisner, who served under General Guyon in the Hungarian campaign. We understand there are no English officers in the service, except Surgeon-general Stewart and his corps of army doctors. There are about thirty Englishmen employed in the arsenal of Asuncion."

General Urquiza has been named by the National Government to command a vanguard of 5000 Entre Rian troops, and march at once into Corrientes.

THE FAN.

WHEN and where was the fan invented? is a question much easier asked than answered. Its nature bespeaks an eastern origin; but all we know is, that its claim to long descent is as indisputable as the favour it has enjoyed has been universal. The beauties of old Rome were as familiar with its charms as the proud-stepping dames of modern Spain; and ladies of every clime and complexion have adopted the mischief-working weapon of coquetry, and become skilled in the mystery of flirting a fan. Copper-coloured dandies, born to use the tomahawk and scalping knife, have rejoiced in the possession of turkey-plume fans; and the clever Japanese have turned the instrument to uses undreamed of by less ingenious nations. In the alien-hating dominions of the Tycoon, the schoolmaster brings unruly urchins to book by rapping their knuckles with a fan; the fop uses it as a switch; the beggar makes it a receptacle for alms; the traveller seeks useful information in its folds; the warrior brains a foe with its iron case; and it comes as a death warrant to the high born evildoer.

The deacons of the Greek Church receive a fan upon being ordained, to remind them that they are expected to keep intrusive insects from annoying the superior priests in the performance of their public duties; and a large fan of white peacock feathers has figured in many a grand religious solemnity as part of the papal insignia. It is, however, unnecessary to dwell upon such exceptional uses of the fan, as we intend here to deal with it only as an article of feminine luxury; and despite the temptation to follow its migrations from country to country, we shall confine ourselves to recording its use and abuse in our English world of fashion.

It is hard to say when the fan made its first appearance in England—probably at the beginning of the sixteenth century. It certainly hit the fancy of the sex, for it soon became an indispensable item in the feminine paraphernalia. In Shakespere's day, no lady thought of stirring abroad without it, the care of the toy devolving upon her gentleman usher: even Juliet's nurse must have Peter to carry her fan; and many a poor lover, who had ravished a feather from his lady's fan, and worn it as a favour, hesitated at carrying his love to its legitimate conclusion, for fear of his ability to > Keep a lazy waiting-man,

> And buy a hood and silver-handled fan,
> With forty pound.

The most fashionable fans were made of ostrich, peacock, or other flexible feathers, fastened into a metal or ivory handle. Among the unconsidered trifles snapped up by Falstaff's hungry jackals, Pistol and Nym, was the handle of a certain Mistress Bridget's fan, for which a fence of the period gave the conveyers three shillings and ninepence. When Elizabeth honoured her lord-keeper by dining with him at his house at Kew, a diamond-decked fan was one among the gifts with which he acknowledged her condescension. Fans, indeed, seem to have been always acceptable to her Majesty; and many such costly toys figure in the list of new year's gifts tendered by courtiers to their royal mistress. That terrible sea-bird, Sir Francis Drake, presented Elizabeth with a fan of white and red feathers, its gold handle enamelled with one half moon, of mother-of-pearl, enclosing another of diamonds and pearls, forming a jewelled frame for a miniature portrait of herself. The Countess Bath furnished another of swan-down, "with a maze of green velvet, embroidered with seed-pearls, and a very small chain of silver gilt, and in the midst a border on both sides of seed-pearls, sparks of rubies and emeralds; and thereon a monster of gold, the head and breast of mother-of-pearl." A modest gentleman, who preferred to show his loyalty anonymously, sent the Queen a fan of sundry coloured feathers set in a silver-mounted agate handle. Leicester paid his court with a fan of white feathers, the gold handle ornamented with pearls, emeralds, rubies, and diamonds, and bearing "a lion ramping with a white bear muzzled at his foot"—a device that may have been merely significant of his loyalty to the Queen, but capable of being interpreted in a tenderer fashion by the woman. When Elizabeth died, the royal wardrobe contained no less than twenty-seven fans.

Tom Coryat was charmed with the elegance of the Italian fans. He says: "These fans both men and women of the country do carry to cool themselves withal in time of heat, by often fanning their faces. Most of them are very elegant and pretty things. For whereas the fan consisteth of a painted piece of paper and a little wooden handle; the paper which is fastened into the top is on both sides most curiously adorned with excellent pictures; either of amorous things tending to dalliance, having some witty Italian verses or fine emblems written under them; or of some notable Italian city, with a brief description added thereunto. These fans are of a mean price, for a man may buy one of the fairest of them for so much money as countervaileth our English groat." The Italian gentlemen did not stand alone in their effeminacy. The butterflies of the Scotch Solon's court carried fans to shield their tender faces from the rude wind as they rode to banquet or ball. "We strive to be accounted womanish," murmurs Greene, "by keeping of beauty, by curling of hair, by wearing plumes of feathers in our hands, which in wars our ancestors wore on their heads." This ridiculous custom seems to have had a long life, for Aubrey bears witness that in 1678 gentlemen were in the habit of carrying huge fans with handles half a yard long; serving not only for their protection and delectation, but coming into domestic use as instruments for correcting their grown up daughters when troublesome or rebellious. The Judges of the land were not exempt from the fan-fever, and no less a man than Lord Chief Justice Coke carried an enormous fan when going the circuit—a curious method of adding dignity to the majesty of the law!

Catherine of Braganza introduced the green shading fan into England, and it held its pride of place until the Revolution, when the folding fan came into vogue, and the old fashioned feather fan (rechristened the matron's fan) was relegated to elderly ladies, as "more comely and civil for old persons than the former, which is shiffed with nothing but vanity;" the vanity lying in the landscapes, romantic scenes, and fanciful designs with which the folding fans were decorated. In Anne's reign, the toy had lost none of its charms, nor had fashionable ladies acquired more decency, for we are assured that they only endured the intolerable fatigue of sitting out the morning service in church, by making it an occasion for displaying their fine fans, white hands, and brilliant jewellery. The fan must have made deep inroads on a fine lady's pin money, since Sir Roger de Coverley thought the profits of a windmill should be set apart to find fans for his perverse widow, if she became Lady de Coverley.

To flirt a fan properly was an art only to be acquired with labour. Mrs. Abington, the actress, was a proficient in it:

> Pray, ladies, copy Abington;
> Observe the breeding in her air;
> There's nothing of the actress there:
> Assume her fashion if you can,
> And catch the graces of her fan.

Addison gives some amusing instructions in the use of the fan. Handling the fan was performed with the instrument closed, the executant first shaking it at one gentleman, then tapping her neighbour on the shoulder, next pressing her lips to the end of the fan, and finally letting her arm fall easily and gracefully by her side. This was to be learned in about a week. Unfurling the fan required at least a month's incessant practice; the manœuvre comprising little flirts and vibrations, gradual and deliberate openings, and voluntary fallings asunder of the fan. To discharge fan was to make a pop as loud as the report of a pocket pistol. To ground fan was to top it gracefully upon the table with a certain air, in order to take up a pack of cards, replace a falling pin, adjust a stray curl, or perform some equally important act. All these difficulties of fan-drill surmounted, the greatest remained to be conquered; but even flirting the fan might, with great perseverance, be mastered by an apt pupil in three months' time. "There is an infinite variety of motions to be made use of in the flirting of a fan. There is the angry flutter, the modest flutter, the timorous flutter, the confused flutter, the merry flutter, and the amorous flutter. Not to be tedious, there is scarcely any emotion in the mind which does not produce a suitable agitation in the fan; insomuch, that if I only see the fan of a disciplined lady, I know very well whether she laughs, frowns, or blushes. I have seen a fan so very angry, that it would have been dangerous for the absent lover who provoked it to have come within the wind of it; and at other times so very languishing, that I have been glad, for the lady's sake, the lover was at a sufficient distance from it. I need not add that a fan is a prude or a coquette according to the nature of the person who bears it."

When ivory, leather, wood, and paper superseded feathers in the manufacture of fans, artists were called in to add beauty to the delicate weapon that gave

> Coolness to the matchless dame,
> To every other breast a flame.

Watteau fairly fanned his way to fame; Capriani, West, and Reynolds did not disdain to use their pencils in the service of fashion, and we can readily accept Miss Burney's assurance that the result was more delightful than can well be imagined. But the painters were not allowed to have it all their own way; the engravers entered the lists with vigour and success, and catered to the love of novelty with great profit to themselves. When Sacheverell was the pet of the ladies, nothing would serve for fan-mounts but representations of the church martyr at the bar. When Gulliver's Travels took the town by storm, every lady carried Liliput about with her; and when the Beggars' Opera made Gay rich, and Rich gay, fans were covered with copies of the songs and engravings of the scenes. A correspondent of Sylvanus Urban, writing in 1753, gives a curious list of a dozen designs he saw displayed by a row of ladies kneeling at the communion in a fashionable London church. Such subjects as the "Meeting of Isaac and Rebecca," and "Joseph and Potiphar's Wife," being scriptural, might pass muster with a tender critic; but "Darby and Joan," "The Taking of Porto Bello," "The Humours of Change Alley," "Silenus," "Vauxhall Gardens," "The Judgment of Paris," "Harlequin, Pierrot, and Columbine," and "The Prodigal Son," from the "Rake's Progress," were hardly in keeping with the occasion. The popularity of the printed fan-mounts seems, however, to have run counter to the interests of the English fan-makers, for they thought necessary to petition against the importation of them from abroad; and one of their advocates proposed the levying of a tax of sixpence and a shilling upon every paper and leather fan-mount, calculating to raise thereby a revenue of between twenty and thirty thousand pounds, to the detriment only of some half-a-dozen paltry plate engravers, who were enriching themselves and starving hundreds. The decline of the fan seems to have commenced with the present century, and although it is still to be seen at balls and theatres, it has long ceased to be a necessary accompaniment to a lady's toilet.—Chambers.

THE MAN WHO IS IN DEBT.—Of course, it is ridiculously simple in me, but how can a man eat, drink, sleep, and be jolly under the pressure of debt? How on earth can he walk forth well apparelled and appointed, and face the man whose unpaid-for trousers he is wearing? How dare he smile at his butcher, or his grocer, who are at that minute ten or twenty guineas a piece poorer for his past dinners and teas? How dare he pat his children on the head when he knows that if he should die that night their future is wholly uncared for? How on earth can he enjoy any luxury, trusting only to his dodging instincts, if the day of pecuniary reckoning should suddenly come? How can he face the rascally reflection of himself in the looking-glass long enough to tie the cravat which ought to be choking him? How can he have the impudence to go among honest, upright people, and expect cordial recognition, or any recognition at all? How dares the brazen thief, in his fine clothes, look into the frank, honest face of the swarthy mechanic, who has proved himself a man by that day's hard labour I can't see? How he can pass a station-house or a policeman without asking that summary justice may be meted out to him rather than to the poor, friendless, ragged wretches, whom adverse circumstances seem sometimes to have so hedged about that nothing can help them? I look upon such men with a wonder that never abates.—Fanny Fern.

A triple alliance has been signed between Brazil, Uruguay, and the Argentine Republic. Twenty thousand men had been sent against Paraguay. Lopez has seized, in the port of Assumption, without any previous declaration of war, the Argentine steamer Salto. His squadron has taken possession of the port of Corrientes and of two vessels of war. The town of Corrientes was occupied without resistance by 7000 Paraguayans. Buenos Ayres had declared war against Paraguay.

Prince Napoleon is now writing a history of the Bonaparte family, to which his speech at Ajaccio may be said to be a preface.

The basso Capponi is said to have married a "belle Anglaise," of good family, and a fortune of 350,000 francs.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

MANUKAU HARBOUR, NEW ZEALAND.

Pilot Station, 25th July, 1865.

Notice is hereby given that a signal mast has recently been erected at the South Head, at the entrance of the harbour, and is now working for the purpose of guiding vessels to and from sea. The signals are similar to those formerly used at the North Head (Paratutai); some additional signals and instructions will shortly be published for general information.

Notice is also given that three new iron buoys have been placed in the Southern Channel, in positions as hereinafter mentioned, and the former buoys removed. In future, there will not be any fairway buoys in the channel as formerly; but two large beacons, cone-shaped at top, 600 feet apart, are now erected in frame and near completion on the South Head, about 400 feet above the sea beach, to be painted white and red, and by keeping the same in one, bearing N.E. by N. ½ north, from sea, will lead a fairway course between the shoals to the turning of the channel at the "Tranmeer" and the "Treachery" Buoys, and then by keeping northward along the line of beach, the South Head and "Emma" Spit Buoys will be plainly seen. It is contemplated to place two beacons in line on the north side of the harbour to guide vessels through this part of the channel, particularly as a guide when the buoys are missing or being otherwise set from the channel by the tide.

South Head Spit Buoy.—A red buoy, cone-shaped, and mounted with a barrel on triangular rods showing ten feet above sea level, and moored in 3½ fathoms at low water, spring tides, distance from the beach about a cable length with Paratutai bearing W. ½ N., and the lower beacon at South Head S.E. ½ E.

"Emma" Spit Buoy.—A black buoy, cone-shaped, and mounted with a circular cage on a tube perforated with holes, showing ten feet above sea level, and moored at the extreme N.E. end of the shoal in 3½ fathoms at low water spring tides, with Paratutai bearing W. by N. ½ N., and the lower beacon at South Head E.S.E.

"Tranmeer" Shoal Buoy.—A black buoy, shaped and mounted like the "Emma" Spit Buoy, is moored at the eastern part of the shoal in 3½ fathoms at low water spring tides, with Paratutai bearing N.W. ¾ N. and the lower beacon at South Head N.E. ½ N. In consequence of this shoal having grown more to the eastward since the last surveys (1863), the present buoy has been placed about ⅓ of a cable more to the S.E. than the former buoy, and persons in charge of vessels drawing over 8 feet are hereby cautioned not to round that part of the shoal at low water without keeping the South Head beacons in one, by so doing they will not have less than 3½ fathoms water in the channel at that time of tide.

Treachery Shoal Bay.—A Red Buoy, shaped and mounted like the South Head Spit Buoy, is at present sunk, but will be replaced at the eastern part of the shoal in four fathoms at low water spring tides, as soon as practicable; and until further notice be given, there will be no other buoys or beacons placed at the entrance of the harbour.

The bearings before mentioned are by compass, and the rise and fall of tides may be considered as follows:—Neaps about 8 feet and springs 12 feet at ordinary tide. High water at the full and change of the moon at the entrance of the harbour, 9.30 a.m.

Thomas Wing, Harbour Master.

The P. and O. Co.'s steamer Jeddo sailed from this port on the 22nd instant, at 2.45 p.m., bound for Melbourne. The A. S. N. Co.'s steamer City of Adelaide, cleared the Heads at 5.45 p.m. By telegram we learn that the City of Adelaide beat this celebrated steamer, having arrived four hours before her, or seven hours in the passage.

The Barwon (s.), from Hokitika, Nelson, and Wellington, via Auckland, left latter port at 5.30 p.m. on Friday, the 18th instant. Had fair weather to the Three Kings; then variable winds and weather, with much sea, and strong northerly current.

The Boomerang (s.) left Rockhampton on Monday, August 21st, at 9.14 a.m., rounded Cape Capricorn same day at 6 p.m. with a fresh breeze from S.E., Wide Bay was passed on 22nd at 1 a.m., from thence fresh breezes from S. to S.W. remainder of passage. Passed James Paterson on 24th, at noon, 5 miles south of Tacking Point; Eagle (s.) at 2.30; the same day abreast of Manning River, arrived at Sydney at 12.45 a.m. on 25th.

The A1 British-built brig Gordon, will be sold by auction by Messrs. L. K. Threlkeld and Co., at their Rooms, George-street, on Monday next.

Aquatics.—The Grand Sculler's Match, for £200, between R. Green, the Australian champion, and Hickey, of Newcastle, the winner in the last event, will take place this afternoon over the usual course on the Parramatta River. Green has been in active training under the supervision of Mr. W. Dind, jun., and Hickey has been located at Kissing Point with Mr. P. Murray, who brought him out on the former occasion. Both men are reported to be in splendid condition, and a considerable amount has been invested in the match, Green having the call. To insure the friends of the pullers having a good view of the race, the Paterson (s.), has been engaged, to leave the Circular Wharf at 2.30 p.m., and from the well known qualities of the competitors a well-contested match may be anticipated.

ARRIVAL.

August 7.—Mary and Edith, from Valparaiso, via Wellington.

Stranding of the Steamer Lady of the Lake and Two Sailing Vessels.—The s.s. Barwon, Captain Lowrie, arrived at Hokitika on the 29th ultimo. She reports the stranding of the steamer Lady of the Lake, which went ashore inside the Hokitika bar. The cargo and passengers were saved, and there is a probability of her being got off again, a number of men having commenced to dig her out of her present sandy resting-place, and it is supposed that the re-launching will be successfully accomplished. The brig Montezuma met a worse fate on the beach outside the bar, where she went ashore; and although the cargo was saved, she was immediately condemned, and her hull sold for £20, the sails and gear fetching perhaps as much more. Our extracts furnish particulars of the going ashore of the schooner Defiance, and the narrow escape of several other small craft.—Nelson Colonist.

Boat Accident and Loss of Seven Lives.—On the 29th ultimo an accident involving great loss of life occurred on the beach at Hokitika. A boat belonging to some men who had arrived off this port in the Maid of Erin, from Nelson, was manned by the owners, and pulled alongside the Lady Darling, from which vessel they took eight passengers. The boat, manned by five men—four pulling and one at the steer oar—then made for the beach. While nearing the breakers, the boat was very well managed, being steered by Captain Ogilvy. The first roller struck the boat aft, driving her half out of the water; the next, following the course of its predecessor, half filled the boat with water, and a few seconds afterwards the boiling surf completely overwhelmed the poor fellows, and submerged the boat. The greater number of the men managed to regain the boat, but two, who appeared unable to swim, for a minute were buffeting the waves, and then were seen no more. Every sea as it rolled in reduced the number of men on the boat, now drifting ashore. Immense excitement prevailed among the large crowd which had collected on the beach, who were anxious to render assistance, and the most praiseworthy efforts were made by many, at the hazard of their lives, to rescue the men now perishing before their eyes and almost within arm's length. At last one man was seized and carried ashore amid the cheers and cries of the crowd; another and another of the poor fellows were safely landed, until five men in all were rescued. Their names are—Samuel Goddard (boatman), John Ogilvy (captain of the Canterbury), Robert Cooper, George Gordon, and John Batt (passengers per Lady Darling). The names of the drowned men are John M'Intosh, Edward Tanson, — Thompson, Robert Turner, Henry Heron, Thomas Allen, and George Hawkins. Two or three gentlemen on horseback went down the beach to the northward, carrying ropes with them, in the hope of saving others, followed by an eager and excited crowd. At last a body was seen in the surf, and after a considerable number of attempts not unaccompanied by severe risks, was caught hold of by some brave fellows, and carried up the beach. Life, we believe, was not quite extinct, but after various means had been adopted to restore animation for a quarter of an hour, the medical men present pronounced him to be dead. By this time another body was washed ashore near the same place, and up to the present time seven bodies have been recovered. The interment of the seven unfortunates, whose death we have attempted to describe took place yesterday, a large concourse of people assembling to witness the ceremony. The mournful procession was led by a band of musicians, playing the Dead March. The first vehicle bore the remains of Mr. R. Turner, second son of Mr. Samuel Turner, of the Exhibition Store, followed by the bereaved parent and a long train of sorrowing friends. The next conveyed the body of Mr. Hawkins, and another followed with five more victims of the boisterous wave. On arriving at the cemetery, the burial service was read by Mr. J. Cross, in the absence of a regular minister, amidst the most profound attention and silence, and the bodies were committed to their last resting place.—West Coast Times, August 2nd.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 26, 1865.

The action Holt v. Dalgleish has absorbed the political interest of the week. The Court was crowded throughout. We do not, however, believe that within its precincts there was a single person, if we except perhaps the defendant, who had the slightest suspicion that the accusation against which Mr. Holt appealed to a jury of his fellow-citizens had any foundation.

An appeal to a Court of justice was not necessary for the vindication of Mr. Holt in the colony of New South Wales, but a person of his rank and connections has an interest beyond it. Mr. Salomons, the counsel of Mr. Dalgleish, mentioned the names of Dr. Dodd, John Dean Paul, and Fauntleroy to show how men could be wealthy, pious, and liberal, and yet come to the gallows or the hulks; he proved that innocence is not always guaranteed by an unspotted name. That it is not so guaranteed imposes upon men the duty of vindicating their character when deliberately assailed—because personal excellence or local distinction will not be an answer to a positive charge made with legal deliberation. It was proper, therefore, to prove not only that the accusation had failed in the Police Courts and before the grand jury, but that its failure was not from the fortuitous absence of some link of essential evidence—not one of those accidents by which people so often escape the penalties of crime, but that the accusation was "malicious"—that there was no "reasonable and probable cause"—that it was simply an ebullition of that feeling which the law in certain developments calls malice, and for which it does not allow the plea of public good.

The issue of the trial is this—that in the judgment of the Court Mr. Dalgleish was a wrongful accuser and that in being so he was without excuse. Mr. Holt had given him no provocation unless voting for another candidate. There was nothing in Mr. Holt's character or circumstances to lead to his selection as the object of false accusations, unless that he was a man of sensitive mind, eminent for his wealth, and formerly a member of the Legislature and Minister of the Crown. If it were admitted that Mr. Dalgleish, although without having any special occasion to vindicate the law, nevertheless from pure patriotism sought to bring the defendant to justice, yet, after that attempt had been defeated, the reiteration of the charge could only be ascribed to the source to which the jury have traced it. The damages assessed by them indicate their estimate of the character of the prosecution and the injury done to the plaintiff. No one imagined that money was the object of the action, or that when its purpose was accomplished any vindictive consequences would be pursued. It is fortunate for the defendant that he fell into the hands of a man of different temperament from himself—too easily stirred indeed, too sensitive of wrong, but of a nature impulsive to generous deeds and ready to heap up forgiveness when the sting of unprovoked injury is gone.

We should be glad to think that such an example will have its weight upon the future conduct of the defendant. He has many times appeared before the public with accusations which, if believed, would have consigned to infamy the persons he accused. In every instance when brought to legal test his imputations have failed. Whether they have been deliberately and wilfully concocted, or are the common efflorescence of uninstructed and envious minds; or whether they have been the blundering work of a pugnacious man mistaken in duty, but desirous to perform it, still the result has been the same to the persons who have suffered the annoyance, and who have had to incur the expense and the weariness of formal refutation. We know of no instance in our colonial experience of such frequent attempts by one man, as have occupied our courts of justice, and been at the same time met by such signal and ignominious defeat. Mr. Dalgleish is, however, an example of the worthlessness of that public distinction which arises from an eagerness to accuse and to condemn. It will be long before his voice will be heard with patience. It will be long before he will attain, even among men of his own class and party, the respect due only to the discharge of the duties of public life in a spirit of moderation and charity.

The law has justly pronounced as infamous the wilful personation of a voter. It has assigned as a penalty a long and disgraceful punishment. It is such as no man who has sustained a reputable character could look upon as possible to himself without feelings of horror. In proportion to the ignominy justly attached to the crime must be the wrong inflicted by its hasty, passionate, and therefore malicious imputation. The policy of the law does not take into account the motives of the prosecutor when he sustains his case, since no man is entitled to compensation because those who have been witnesses of his offence pursue him from hatred. The probability that political or private passions prompt a prosecution should, however, always place the public on their guard in the credit they give to it. If it is necessary for the public protection to shield an accuser, whatever may be his motives, providing he establishes the truth of his charge, it is equally necessary that the public should hold to severe responsibility those who trade upon accusations or who sweep up rumours and surmises wholly irrelevant and inadmissible and utterly incapable of sustaining the charges they bring.

Much stress had been laid upon the wealth of the plaintiff in this action as a reason for denying him the right of appeal against an act of injustice; but men in the position of Mr. Holt are precisely those who are capable of meeting the cost of such an appeal. We do not forget that the lottery of a jury list might have thrown four men into the box who would have set aside entirely the evidence, and treated the law of the Judge with derision. A great public service is rendered by men who can incur the risk of courts of law when they establish a great principle in which the poor are more concerned than the rich, that random charges shall not be made without the danger of punishment, and who teach in a practical form those lessons which it would be in vain to give in the shape of moral science.

People in this community who required this lesson will remember the cause of Holt v. Dalgleish. They will perceive that all is not finished when they have said their say or obtained a magisterial hearing. We hope the great and almost unprecedented generosity of the plaintiff in bearing all the cost of this vindication, as well as renouncing the damages awarded, may not impair the force of the example which he has otherwise offered, or lead other persons to calculate upon that good fortune which Mr. Dalgleish could hardly have expected, and which we hope he may live to deserve.

In the matter of our fortifications, General Cameron's advice was something like that of the ancient oracle, "Trust to your wooden walls." He has taken a trip down the harbour, and was shown where the fortifications are and where they ought to be, and he is reported to have given an opinion that her Majesty's Navy would be a better protection to the city than either the existing or the proposed forts. This is a conclusion in which the citizens would probably be quite willing to acquiesce if they could always be sure that an adequate portion of her Majesty's Fleet would be in the harbour whenever wanted. But this fleet is not in any respect under colonial orders. It comes and goes without any reference to colonial Cabinets. Port Jackson is the naval depôt, but the Governor is not in a position of naval authority. He can express an opinion, and advise, and proffer a request, but he has no power of control. We contribute to the naval expenditure so long as vessels of war remain in our port, but the vessels are not pro tem. a part of a colonial navy. In case of war the navy on the station would doubtless be employed to the utmost in the defence of the colonies, but not of this city exclusively, and its duties might necessitate its absence from the port. During the New Zealand war the port has been clear of all vessels of war for weeks and months together, and if we had been dependent on them for protection against a surprise we should have been left in the lurch.

Moreover, in case of war the exigencies of the case might require the fleet to leave the port. A hostile fleet cruising off the coast would paralyse our commerce, and it would be necessary to go out and meet it. This would be the proper duty of the navy, but the defence of the city would then be left to the colonists. In such a case they would, of course, be on the alert, and the utmost vigilance would be exercised to guard against a surprise. But they could not improvise forts, except of the rudest description, nor could guns of an adequate calibre be placed in position at a short notice. Before the citizens can repose in confidence, it is necessary that they should take reasonable precautions to meet probable contingencies. To have a ship of war always in the harbour would be a protection against an ignominious surprise. No privateer could then slip in and lay the city under contribution. A ship, too, would be invaluable in case of a feint or a real attempt on the side of Botany Bay. But the very mobility of a ship makes it unreliable as a defence unless its presence can be guaranteed in the right place at the right time.

Commodore Wiseman is not likely to depreciate the services of the navy, and he strongly recommended the construction of forts on commanding positions. When we find sailors telling us to put our trust in batteries, and soldiers telling us to put our trust in ships, it is not very consolatory, for it looks as if each of them wished to intimate that his own arm of the service was not to be held responsible for the defence of the city. No doubt "baith's best," and it is only a consideration of economy that would deprive us of either. No one would really disparage either kind of protection, though some may attach more value to one than to the other.

The new Colonial Defence Act, which has just passed the Imperial Parliament, has not yet come under the cognisance of the colonial Legislatures. But the object of it is to provide a colonial naval force, and which, if it is to have to some extent an Imperial organisation, will be under colonial management. It has yet to be seen how far the colonists will be ready to fall in with this arrangement. It will necessarily involve an additional annual expenditure, but it would guarantee to some extent a small naval protection to each metropolitan port. This, in conjunction with fixed batteries, would probably be equal to all practical emergencies, and would leave the Imperial Fleet free to protect the coast as well as the cities. Such an arrangement would have the advantage of compelling the organisation of a local maritime force. The beginning of this has already been made, but it has been somewhat neglected, and at its best was never developed to the full extent that was desirable. The rigid economy which is unfortunately necessary in all departments of the public service will, no doubt, interpose obstacles to the full realisation of any plan which may yet be admitted to be theoretically correct. But even if nothing is done towards the construction of a colonial navy much may still be done, under judicious management, towards the construction of a naval force. The training of men, and the rendering them efficient, is in some respects the most satisfactory part of the defence expenditure, and is not liable to be suddenly superseded by new inventions. All modes of warfare call for energetic and disciplined soldiers and sailors, and though tactics may change with every fresh revolution in the art of war, the value of courage, capacity, and discipline never changes.

It may possibly happen that the wars, and rumours of wars, which are so deeply agitating society are, for a time, about to be hushed, and that the great nations, weary of the waste and carnage of great wars, and conscious that all wars between great nations must henceforth be great wars, will eagerly seize every occasion for a peaceful settlement of national difficulties. It is true enough that war often provokes war, and that one contest leads on to another, but it is also true that men can weary of war, and that a reaction can set in in favour of peace. It is not impossible that this may be the case now. There are causes enough for provocation afloat if statesmen were eager to make them grounds of offence. There is scarcely a nation which has not some grounds of offence against other nations, and grounds which in past times would have been deemed sufficient to justify a war. But there is no great country which at present has anything to gain by war, and every one of them would be seriously embarrassed by it, and so far as our own country is concerned it is certain that nothing but the absolute necessity of maintaining the substantial interests of the nation could draw it into war. Notwithstanding, therefore, the effervescence of national politics, there are some grounds for hoping that our country may enjoy a long peace, and that preparations which the British colonies may make for self-defence may be unrequired even though they were wise. It may be that no living Volunteer will ever have to fire a gun in anger, and that none who build our forts may ever see them manned for the stern defence of colonial homes. We can hope it may be so, but in the present condition of affairs it is not safe to presume on so fortunate a future, and it is but common prudence to take reasonable precautions against a danger that might come, and that might come suddenly.

Prorogation of Parliament.—By a proclamation in yesterday's Government Gazette, Parliament is further prorogued to Tuesday, the 3rd October next.

The Attorney-General.—The Hon. J. H. Plunkett, M.L.C., was yesterday sworn in as Attorney-General and a member of the Executive Council, and will conduct the Government business in the Upper House.

Model of the Proposed Leichhardt Monument.—In a recent session of Parliament, the sum of £300 was voted for a monument to Leichhardt, to be erected on the land intended to be reclaimed in Farm Cove, immediately in front of the Lower Botanic Garden. One reason why the sum has not yet been expended is, that the proposed reclamation has not been carried out, though it has, we believe, been commenced. A handsome design for a fountain monument, by the Colonial Architect, was approved of, and a few days since a small model of the monument, in Caen stone, has been made by Mr. M'Gill, well known as a very talented designer and carver in stone. The principal portion of the monument is a four-sided column, beautifully relieved by chastely cut decorations, with dolphins at the projecting corners, which are intended to be cast in bronze. In a panel on one of the sides is a medallion portrait of Leichhardt, and the other three sides are filled with emblematical figures of Hope, Endurance, and Perseverance. From the top of this column rise five shaftlets—one from the centre and one from each corner, and intended to be of coloured granite—supporting a large shallow basin of quatrefoil shape, with dolphins at the angles. In the centre of the basin there is an ornamental column supporting a small circular basin; from this again rises a tapered spiral column, from which there is to be a jet d'eau; water will also flow from the dolphins' mouths, and both the upper and lower basins will overflow. The monument is to be enclosed by a large stone basin rectangular in shape, but with semicular projections at the angles, in the centres between which are to be neat drinking fountains; this basin will be thirty feet in diameter, and the height of the upper column will be seventeen feet. All the minute details of the elegant design are brought out with admirable exactness, and the model is an accurate representation of what the monument will be when erected.

Arrest of Supposed Forgers at Parramatta.—Yesterday sergeant Kelly, in company with detective M'Glone and some of the Parramatta police, started in pursuit of the man suspected to be implicated with the prisoner Ramsay, who was remanded to Sydney on Thursday, on a charge of forgery. They succeeded in tracing him to within two miles of Windsor, where he was arrested and brought in to Parramatta. His appearance corresponded exactly with the description of the second man in the warrant issued by the Sydney Bench. His name is John Williams, and he was brought before the Court, and, upon the application of sergeant Kelly, was remanded to Sydney Central Police Court. Prisoner had been discharged from the Parramatta gaol on the 21st instant, after a sentence of eighteen months, for stealing.—Correspondent.

Dangerous Rifle Practice.—A correspondent writes as follows:—"I think it right to draw your attention to a circumstance which occurred this afternoon, as it may be the means of saving life. This afternoon I was in a boat proceeding from Rushcutter's Bay to Mossman's Bay, and when about level with the centre of Garden Island (the eastern side) I observed some persons on the middle of the island near the shore firing at a cask or some such object in the water, at, I should guess, a distance of about four or five hundred yards. On my approaching the target I, of course, supposed the firing would cease, but to my astonishment and fright it did not, and I am sure we could not have cleared the target by a yard (my wife was in the boat with me) when a shot was fired, the bullet striking the water fifteen yards from us and ricochetting over our heads, and only by the greatest mercy one of us escaped wounding or death. The peculiar noise made by the bullet going through the air told me how close it had gone, and I have taken the liberty of addressing this to you in the hope that you will deem it sufficiently important to notice."

Tattersall's.—A meeting of the members of this Club was held at the rooms yesterday evening, when a little business was done upon the Spring Meeting. Several Calcutta sweeps were drawn for some of the minor races, but the great events—the Derby and Mayor's Cup—were not touched. For the Maiden Stakes, Fisherman's Daughter, Pitsford, and Falcon fetched the highest prices. Kerosene was first favourite for the Innkeeper's Stakes, while Eva and Falcon were most fancied for the Epsom Handicap. The next meeting will be held on Monday next.

Reported Gun Accident at Rockhampton.—On Monday last a paragraph appeared in the Herald, to the effect that a gentleman in Sydney had received a telegram stating that a big gun at Rockhampton had burst, and two men had been smashed by the explosion. The telegram received in Sydney turns out to be a hoax, and was sent by one Dr. Robertson, resident there, to Captain White, of the Volunteer Corps.

Sons of Temperance.—A meeting of the Day Spring division (No. 1) of the Sons of Temperance was held last night in the Hall of Temperance, Pitt-street, Mr. J. Davis, W.P., occupied the chair. The meeting was called specially to revise the rules, the large accession of members to the society having rendered some alteration in the by-laws necessary. The order of the Sons of Temperance has been established for the purpose of affording pecuniary assistance to the members in case of sickness and death; and, as its name imports, is confined exclusively to abstainers from alcoholic stimulants.

Colonial Fire Bricks.—It will be seen by a reference to our advertising columns that a further trial has been made of Messrs. Bradford and Co.'s fire bricks, at the City Iron Works, against the best Gairnkirk and English, and that they have proved equal to either. A trial has also been made at Messrs. Dawson and Co.'s Foundry, without any appearance of fusion being produced. We understand that in future Messrs. Bradford and Co.'s bricks will be used at both of the above establishments. For some time past Messrs. Bradford and Co., as we are informed, have been making experiments with the various clays at their disposal, and have now arrived at definite conclusions as to their selection and admixture to produce an article which will stand the fire.

Annual Festival.—On the evening of Thursday, the 24th instant, the old-established firm of D. Jones and Co. entertained their employés with a supper, in celebration of the annual stock-taking. One of the most spacious rooms was tastefully decorated with flags and festoons of shrubs and flowers for the occasion. About sixty principals of departments and assistants sat down to a sumptuous repast, served in a most recherché style. The usual loyal toasts and those relevant to the prosperity of the firm having been proposed, and responded to with cordiality and enthusiasm, the company adjourned, and spent the remainder of the evening in recitations and music, terminating one of the most gratifying and pleasing re-unions the establishment has known.—Communicated.

The Weather and the Sheep.—The Euston correspondent of the Pastoral Times states that there has not been any rain in that district since the 8th July. The days are hot, with cold and sometimes frosty nights, and what little water there was in the back country is now nearly dried up, causing flocks to again return to the frontage, where there is scarcely a vestige of vegetation to be seen. South Australian and Darling sheep are now travelling up this river, and how the poor animals live, it is difficult to conceive. 1800 fat wethers, Rochfort's, passed up to Balranald on the 8th, they are Darling sheep, and are for the Melbourne market, they are very good, and will doubtless meet a ready sale; on the 9th 7000 mixed sheep, the property of Mr. Armstrong, Northwest Bend, South Australia, passed up the river to Balranald; these sheep are in charge of Mr. Willoby, and he deserves much credit for their condition, considering the season. On the 13th 3000 hoggets, mixed, passed up the river to Balranald; these sheep are in good condition, have large frames, and well woolled, in fact, are the best lot of young stock I have seen for a length of time. They are the property of Mr. Duncan M'Rae, who is proverbial for the very excellent class of stock he introduces to the Riverine purchasers.

THE GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following notifications appear in yesterday's Government Gazette:—

Appointments.—The Hon. John Hubert Plunkett, Esq., has been appointed a member of the Executive Council, and to be Attorney-General of New South Wales. Treasury, Stamp Duties branch—Mr. Henry J. D. Martyn to be Foreman of Stampers, and Mr. James White to be Stamper.

Mr. and Mrs. Heine's Concerts.—The performance at the School of Arts last night was for the benefit of Mr. Heine, and we are glad to say that the attendance was very large, the hall being quite full. The programme was a good one, and included several pieces which a Sydney audience have seldom heard performed. Mr. Heine played several of his favourite selections in his usually finished manner, and in each performance was enthusiastically applauded by the audience. Being encored in his performance of a fantasia on Russian airs (Wieniawski), he played Miska Hauser's celebrated piece, "The bird on the tree," a composition most unique in its character, and which excited the uncontrollable laughter of all present. Mrs. Heine was equally successful in that portion of the entertainment entrusted to her, and her artistic and beautiful performances upon the piano evoked the most unbounded tokens of approval. Mrs. Cordner and Miss James sang several favourite songs, which were well received. The latter young lady has already established herself as a great favourite with a Sydney audience, and with a little more animation than she usually displays, her efforts as a vocalist would rank very high. Mr. and Mrs. Heine announce a morning concert for to-day, and they will appear for the last time in Sydney this evening.

The Lambing.—We learn from the Peak Downs Telegram of 12th instant, that the weather continues very favourable for the lambing season, the temperature being higher than usual in this month, and the young feed springing better. From accounts to hand we anticipate the average increase in our flocks this year will more than maintain the favourable reputation acquired by our pastures. A correspondent at Banchory, Belyando, writes:—Three nights ago, a two-toothed maiden ewe of the merino breed, dropped three ewe lambs, which, for similarity, are like so many peas, only all different in size, the smallest being very diminutive. They are all alive and doing well, for the mother, although now in a mob of some 200 other ewes and lambs, is never content unless they are all beside her. I have often seen Cheviot and Leicester ewes have three lambs, but never saw or heard of such fecundity before in the merino breed. The same morning fourteen ewes, which were in the yard, dropped nineteen lambs.

The Season.—Last Monday the new moon put in an appearance at a few minutes past 5 o'clock. The farmers had been expecting that the lunar change would bring with it a breaking up of the drought, but the day in which the new moon came in was probably the warmest of the season. A clear sky and thin atmosphere suggested a continuance of the previous dry season. The sun on Tuesday morning rose with light summer clouds, but shortly afterwards thick hazy clouds came up obscuring Sol, and afterwards a few large drops of rain fell, followed by a semi-tropical shower. This was supervened by flying clouds of rainy character; and at the time we write there is a prospect of wet, much wanted by farmers. As regards the crops of wheat, those whose sowing has germinated, there appears to be no present apprehension, but the seed that has laid in the ground for the last two months, it may be feared that there will be no growth unless we have some thirty-six hours' rain.—Yass Courier, August 23.

The Shearing Season.—Signs of the approaching shearing are daily apparent here. The passage of drays and shearers through the town is considerable. From the 1st to the 15th of next month most sheds will be opened. An average clip is expected, which, from the dry season, will not be deteriorated in value by the presence of grass seeds. In addition to the new arrivals from Victoria, the rivers swarm with swagmen, so we expect no scarcity of labour.—Pastoral Times, August 19.

Execution of Four Aborigines for Murder.—On the 19th ultimo four natives were hung for murder at Perth, Western Australia. The scene is described by the Perth Gazette as being horrifying, almost beyond description. That journal says.—At 8 o'clock the first two of the condemned made their appearance on the scaffold, yelling and moaning, the ropes were adjusted about their necks, the caps drawn over their faces, and the bolt was on the point of being drawn when one of the poor fellows spoke loudly to his companion—Monkey, are you dead? No, not yet, replied Monkey; when ejaculating oh, my God, the two squatted down as low as the ropes would allow, thus preventing any drop. This non-plussed the sheriff and his deputy, as it was indispensable that the men should be standing to allow of their execution, and as they could not be induced to stand, they must be held up until the fatal moment arrived. This pleasant office was allotted to some half-dozen policemen, who upheld them bodily until the drop at once stifled their groans, yells, and their lives together. After the bodies had hung a quarter of an hour, and life had been pronounced extinct, they were cut down, and preparations made for the two yet to be put to death. Warned, however, by the previous scene, it was decided they should be executed separately, and the third, a man of perhaps forty or forty-five, was pinioned and taken up on the scaffold moaning, groaning, and yelling, adjuring those around, "Don't hang me, I'm a poor old fellow," &c. This man, however, became quiet when placed on the drop, and there was no further trouble with him. The fourth was a younger man, well-known at Albany by the name of Jacky Howson, when the same dreadful scene of yelling, groaning, and supplications for mercy were again gone over, the criminal having his life cut short immediately after, exclaiming, "What will the Queen say when she hears the Governor hung me?"

Shocking Case of Accidental Poisoning.—The Pastoral Times of 19th instant says.—Another victim has fallen to the dangerous custom of keeping poisonous essences for the purpose of ordinary flavouring. The circumstances, as detailed at the magisterial inquiry, are these. The deceased, Miss Wilhelmina M'Kenzie, aged 24, resident at North Deniliquin, was in the habit of taking, under medical advice, small doses of laudanum when apprehending the return of illness to which she had been subject since she had scald on the brain, when eight years old. On Sunday night last, she was sleeping with her little sister, and wanted some laudanum, but, there not being any in the house, "she asked me," said the sister in evidence, "if I thought essence of bitter almonds would send her to sleep. I replied I did not know, and she then got up, struck a match, and, finding the bottle of bitter almonds, poured about half a wine glass in a tumbler and drank it off. My sister then got into bed, and I said, 'I think you have taken too much;' but she replied, 'No, I have not; do you think I want to poision myself?' Soon after this my sister vomited, and I called my father and mother." Dr. Wren was immediately sent for, but death ensued in about half an hour, and, a post mortem being held, the usual appearance of poisoning presented itself. The bottle containing the essence was one of those usually sold in grocers' shops for flavouring.

Municipality of Cook.—A meeting of the council was held at the Council Chambers, on Tuesday, the 15th instant, at 7 p.m. Present, the chairman and councillors M'Grath and Johnston. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Correspondence—1. Letter from the Department of Lands, respecting the appointment of the chairman (Mr. James Larkin), by name, as a trustee for certain land adjoining the University, appropriated for recreation purposes. Ordered that the clerk be directed to inform the Honorable the Secretary for Lands, that the council have nominated Mr. James Larkin to represent them in the trust before referred to. 2. Letter from Dr. Bedford recommending the dry earth system of conservancy of the contents of cesspits. Ordered that the clerk be directed to acknowledge the receipt of the communication, and thank Dr. Bedford for bringing the subject under the notice of the council. 3. Letter from the council clerk of the municipality of Newtown, requesting to be favoured with the view of this council respecting the removal of the University paddock fence along Bligh-street. The chairman laid on the table sundry accounts amounting to £8 11s. Ordered to be referred to the finance committee. The clerk laid on the table a list of those persons who have not yet paid their rates, when it was moved by councillor M'Grath, and seconded by councillor Johnston, "that the clerk be directed to instruct Mr. Brown, solicitor, to take the necessary steps to recover the rates now overdue." Notices of motion: Councillor Johnston gave notice that he would move, at next meeting, that the Missenden Road be kerbed and guttered from the southern boundary of the municipality to the eastern end of Burton-street.

A Frenchman's Comparison of London and Paris.—According to the Pall-Mall Gazette, a writer in La Revue Contemporaine shows that "Paris is like a pretty woman who captivates you at first sight, but in whom you every day discover moral imperfections, all the more distressing because her countenance raised your expectations; whereas London is like a plain woman who rivets your affections by her charms of heart and mind." The extent of London is fifty square miles. Six-and-thirty different localities, now agglomerated into one gigantic whole, make up London, which stretches from Kensington to Greenwich, and from Hampstead to Wimbledon; which has 10 Parks, 200 squares, and 360,000 houses. Paris has only 50,000 houses. The extent of London compared with that of Paris is as 31 to 7. And yet in spite of its prodigious extent, and its population of nearly 3,000,000, London is more comfortable in every way than Paris. The Revue notices with astonishment various indications of London's immensity, such as its 615 post-offices, 3000 postmen, 137 telegraph-offices, 280 cab-stands, and its 12,000 beer-shops: "a son verre a boire," says the writer, "mesurez le monstre."

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—Friday.

IN INSOLVENCY.

Before their Honors the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Hargrave, and Mr. Justice Cheeke.

INSOLVENCY APPEALS.

APPEAL OF GEORGE IRELAND.

This was an appeal against a refusal of the late Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to allow a certificate to the appellant.

Mr. Salomons, instructed by Mr. Evans, appeared in support of the appeal. It was unopposed.

The Chief Commissioner himself appeared to have considered the case as one of hardship, and it was said that the refusal had been partly occasioned by an omission to bring certain facts before his Honor which would have told in favour of the insolvent. The present application, however, was not made under the 10th Victoria No. 14, and the Court held that it must be made under that Act. Leave was granted to renew this application in an amended form.

CUMMINGS V. BLAKE.

This was an appeal against a decision by the Chief Commissioner as to the payment of a monthly sum from the salary of the insolvent (Robert Blake), an inspector of Distilleries, in satisfaction of his debts. The insolvent had been ordered to pay £5 monthly under 100th section of the Insolvent Act, and the now appealing creditor (Robert W. M. Cummings) had sought to obtain an order for the payment of £12 10s. per month. To obtain such an increase was the object of the present appeal.

Mr. Milford, instructed by Mr. Dawson, appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Salomons, instructed by Mr. Levy, for the insolvent.

Some doubts arose as to the state of the case before the late Chief Commissioner, and the certificate of that officer became necessary. As this was not immediately procurable the case was adjourned until the next appeal day—three weeks hence.

APPEAL OF WILLIAM MARKEY.

This was an application for a certificate under 10 Victoria, No. 14, more than two years having elapsed since the refusal of such certificate by the Chief Commissioner.

Mr. Blake, instructed by Messrs. M'Carthy, Son, and Donovan, appeared for the applicant. There was no opposition, all the creditors who proved having consented to the present application.

Their Honors allowed three weeks to the insolvent to file an affidavit explanatory of the circumstances which had led to the refusal of his certificate. On the receipt of this affidavit it was intimated that their Honors would deal with the application.

CERTIFICATE OF CHARLES ZEITLER.

This was an appeal by Rebecca Chambers, against the allowance of a certificate to the abovenamed insolvent.

Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. Forster, appeared for the appellant; and Mr. Isaacs, instructed by Messrs. Teale and Garrett, for the insolvent.

The ground of the present application was that the certificate had been granted at a time when the solicitor for the opposing creditor did not expect it to come on. What was sought for, therefore, was to get in certain fresh evidence against the grant of a certificate. The ground of opposition was that the insolvent having received certain money as "next friend" of the appellant, in an action for breach of promise of marriage, had applied it to his own use. It was contended that the appellant not having attended before the Judge below at the proper time could not now come in and reopen the case, because of her own laches or that of her representative. It was further urged that if the case were to be re-opened at all it should be simply sent back to the Chief Commissioner for the reception of further evidence, instead of going into grounds at present urged on behalf of the appellant.

The Court referred the case back to the Chief Commissioner to take such evidence on either side as the parties might offer in addition to the proceedings already taken in the case. The insolvent, if his evidence should be necessary, to be examined at Armidale—the place of his residence.

The case was thereupon adjourned for three weeks, with an understanding that if the parties were not ready on that day it would be further adjourned.

APPEAL OF MEYER LEVI JONAS.

This was an application under the 10 Vic. No. 14, for a certificate, in a case where it had been refused eight years ago.

Mr. Butler, instructed by Messrs. Ellis and Makinson, appeared in support of the application. It was unopposed.

The Act required that the application should be made with the sanction of a majority of the creditors. In the present case, there was not an actual majority of those who had proved. But one had since died, and several had left the colony; and there was a majority of those whose signatures were actually procurable here. The question was whether this was sufficient to give the Court jurisdiction.

The Court held that although dead creditors would not count, the signature of a majority of all the creditors who were accessible—either resident within the colony or beyond it—was necessary to give jurisdiction to grant a certificate under this statute.

The case was, however, adjourned for three weeks to afford a chance for the procurement of additional signatures.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Thursday.)

Before his Honor Mr Justice Hargrave.

EX PARTE M'INTOSH.—IN RE CASTLE'S BILL OF COSTS.

His Honor gave judgment in this case as follows:—

This was an application to set aside an exparte order to tax an attorney's bill of costs on the grounds—

First. That the order ought not to have been made exparte, and Secondly. That it was not regularly obtained under the 11th Vic., No. 33.

It was contended by Mr. Darley that this exparte order, if granted under the first section of the Act, should have been applied for within one month after the delivery of the bill; and then that the order should have been made by the Prothonotary or other officer of the Supreme Court, with an order of the Judge restraining the attorney, under the conclusion of the first section, from commencing any action, &c., &c.

The order was obtained on the 9th August, the bill of costs having been delivered on the 27th June, and as the action for the bill of costs was pending against Mr. M'Intosh before the application for the exparte order was made, such order was irregular, by omitting any direction to tax the cost of this action, or otherwise imposing terms and conditions if the order was made under the 2nd section of the Act.

On the other hand, Mr. M'Intosh (on his own behalf) contended that under the 33rd General Rule of the 1st March, 1856, and the 10th General Rule of 26th August, 1856, directing that "during the half-yearly vacation no time shall run for pleadings or the doing of any other thing at law or in equity," the vacation time, from July 10th to July 31st, did not count as part of the "month" mentioned in the first section of the Act, and, therefore, that he was in full time on the 9th August, to obtain an exparte order under that section.

I am of opinion, however, that the "such month" mentioned in the first section of the Act is the month which must elapse after the delivery of a bill of costs before the attorney can bring his action, and as that month is clearly a statutory period independent of any rules or practice, and cannot be indirectly enlarged by any such Court rules, so the application for any of these ex parte orders under the first section must be made within the same time. The order, therefore, cannot be maintained as being issued under the 1st section of the Act.

With regard to Mr. Darley's second argument, that this ex parte order is not sustainable under the 2nd section of the Act, it is to be observed—1stly, that the second section contains no express words limiting this section to orders on summonses; and 2ndly, that the order contains no "directions," "conditions," or "restrictions," affecting the attorney's rights in the action, nor showing any prima facie necessity for any summons.

Mr. Darley referred to Archbold's Practice, vol., p.p. 104, 120, and the volume of Forms, Nos. 48, 49, p. 30, from which passages the practice would certainly seem to have been to grant these orders usually upon summons and notice to the attorney; if the month has elapsed from the delivery of the bill, and if the action is sought to be restrained, or any other conditions, or terms sought to be imposed on the attorney. But as I can find no express decision that exparte orders without such terms or conditions are illegal under the second section, I am compelled to decide the present question upon a consideration of general principles applicable to the point for decision, and upon the true construction of the second edition.

Limiting, therefore, my decision to this point alone, I am of opinion that this ex parte order is not necessarily irregular under the second section, for I think that this section, like the corresponding section (37) of 6 and 7 Vic. c. 73, confers (as all the Barons of the Exchequer held in re Barber, 14, Meeson and Welsby, 720, 3 Dowl. and Lowndes, 244 (1845), a complete statutory general jurisdiction to order taxation of attorneys' bills of costs; and I, therefore, think that such jurisdiction includes a power to grant ex parte orders as well as orders on summons, and consequently that Mr. M'Intosh had a perfect statutory right to obtain this order.

Nevertheless, as the order will be only partially efficient, for the purposes of complete justice as between these parties in relation to this bill of costs, and as I am unwilling to create a precedent for a new and inefficient practice in such matters, I shall discharge the order; but I discharge it without costs—1st, because the 33rd General Rule of this Court, of the 1st March, 1856, already referred to, has probably, and I think not on an unfair construction of that rule by an unprofessional person, misled Mr. M'Intosh to think that he was within the month mentioned in the first section; and my second reason for discharging the order without costs is because upon the true construction of the second section I cannot say that the ex parte order was illegal under that section, or otherwise absolutely irregular, under the circumstances stated in the affidavit; but only that it is incomplete for full justice between the parties in this matter, and I think it is undesirable for a single Judge at Chambers to introduce such new practice into these matters.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES OCTAVIUS BRADLY.

His Honor gave judgment in this case as follows:—

This was an application for a prohibition to restrain the plaintiff Love from proceeding with the action in the District Court, on the ground that the cause had been "struck out" from the records of that Court, under the 63rd section of the District Court Act.

The only point for my decision was as to the construction of this 63rd section of the Act, and the effect of the past proceedings in the District Court upon the rights of the parties in the cause.

Mr. Foster, in support of the application, very strongly contended that this 63rd section must be read in connection with the 46th section; and that the right to "strike out" was an imperative statutory right; and that the defendant having obtained the benefit of this right, the cause was, by the plaintiff's default, altogether struck out of Court; and, therefore, that the cases of Mossop v. G. N. Railway, 25 L. J. (C. P.) and 26 L. J. (C. P.); and 16 C. B.; 17 C. B.; and Jones v. Jones, 5 Dowl. and Lowndes, 628, applied to the present application. He contended in fact that the statutory effect of the 63rd section of the Act was to "strike out the cause" from all the books of the District Court;—so that neither the District Court Judge, Mr. Dowling, who appears (but only sub modo) to have declined to restore the cause to the list of one sessional sittings, nor the District Court Judge, Mr. M'Farland, who subsequently granted such restoration, had, according to this argument, any jurisdiction whatever either to hear or grant such application.

Mr. Foster also contended that the order for restoration was void as having been made after a formal decision by a competent Judge, during an antecedent session of the Court. But upon this last point I need not make any remarks, as the decision of Mr. Dowling appears only to relate to a qualified application to restore the cause.

A great many cases as to practice in such matters were cited on both sides; but it seems to me that there is no necessity for me to examine into these cases, or to consider the consequences to these parties of any other set of circumstances than those now before me on these affidavits.

I am therefore of opinion that upon the true construction of the 63rd section, the "striking out" therein directed is a striking out from the cause list of the day; and not, as Mr. Foster contended, from the plaint book mentioned in the 46th section. It will be observed that if the 61st, 62nd, 63rd, and 64th sections be construed together, as in fact they must be, the Legislature was in these four sections only regulating the proceedings "at the time and place named in the summons," and unless there exists any ground necessarily to extend the operation of those sections beyond such "time and place," these sections ought not to receive any wider scope, or any larger construction. I concur, however, in Mr. Foster's argument, that the words of the 63rd section are imperative; and also that by force of the 8th section of the 2nd Acts Shortening Act (22 Vic., No. 12), the word "shall" excludes the District Court Judge from any discretionary power to remit such "striking out."

I think also that under the facts deposed to in these affidavits it is clear that the plaintiff did not appear, and that the defendant is therefore entitled to the full benefit of the 63rd section; for it is also equally clear that the defendant did not "appear" in a legal sense; that is he did not appear either as party and ask for his "costs and satisfaction for trouble and attendance," or appear and ask for judgment "as if the plaintiff had appeared."

On the other hand, I am of opinion that, as the only "striking out" authorised by the 63rd section, is the striking out from the list of causes, I am not required on these affidavits to decide what may be the further rights accruing ex instanti to the defendant from this original laches of the plaintiff, whether a right to a nonsuit, or any other protection from further proceedings by the plaintiff in the same matter.

With reference, however, to the defendant's right to a nonsuit, I would point out the difference between this 63rd section of our Colonial District Courts Act, and the corresponding section (the 79th) of the English County Court Act, 9 and 10 Vic. c. 95. The English statute expressly confers the right to apply for a nonsuit on default of appearance by the plaintiff; but this clause of the English section has been omitted from the colonial Act, which in other respects corresponds exactly with the English section.

I may also mention that I recollect, when myself engaged in 1859 with the other District Court Judges, in preparing the present general rules of practice for these Courts, that we were especially careful to guard against giving to either party too great powers of taking advantage of accidental laches by the opposite party; it being plain to us, that in the initiation of these Courts into general operation throughout the colony, and especially in the rural districts, bad roads, floods, and other casualties, must render the English practice too strict for our colonial circumstances.

It would seem, therefore, to me, upon considering the whole of the District Courts Act, and the true construction of the 63rd section, that the Legislature intentionally omitted the power to nonsuit from the terms of this section; and consequently that no right to a nonsuit can be implied from the terms of this section.

It is also of importance to this branch of the question for me to remark that the defendant has himself, in drawing up the order nisi, adopted the construction of the Act for which the plaintiff contends, and expressly recites that the "striking out" under present consideration is "from the list of causes."

With regard, therefore, to the construction of the 63rd section, I think the "striking out" mentioned in that section does not bring the present case in any way within the authorities of Mossop v. Great Northern Railway, and Jones v. Jones; in both of which cases the decision of the County Court Judge had been upon the merits of the cases, not upon the mere practice and regulation of the Cause paper. In fact, in those cases the County Court Judges had, in effect, granted new trials of the causes in an illegal manner, and contrary to the mode prescribed by the statute.

Here, however, there exists no such grounds for the prohibition to issue; and, therefore, the present rule ought not to be made absolute, because, upon all the affidavits now before me in this matter, there exists no excess of jurisdiction, no fatal irregularity, or any other proper ground for such writ to issue from the superior Court.

With regard to the costs, as the point of construction of the 63rd section was a very fair question to raise for adjudication, and as the difficulty has arisen from the plaintiff's own laches in the first instance, and as the circumstances which occurred in the District Court are of some intricacy, I do not give any costs against the defendant.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

Friday.

Before Mr. District Judge M'Farland.

RICE V. MURRAY.

The trial of this case, commenced on Thursday, was now resumed and concluded. It was an action of trover, to recover possession of a boat called the Surprise, which plaintiff alleged he had purchased of defendant for the sum of £33. The dispute had previously formed the ground of litigation in two Courts—in the Water Police Court, in the first instance, where the defendant was charged with larceny, and the case was dismissed; and, in the second case, the defendant brought an action against plaintiff in this (District) Court for malicious prosecution, and succeeded. Plaintiff now sued to recover possession of the boat, and having made out his case to the satisfaction of the Judge, his Honor found for the plaintiff for £33. Defendant agreed to give up the boat, and plaintiff undertook to receive her in satisfaction of judgment, provided she was delivered up in good order. Mr. Isaacs appeared for the plaintiff, Mr. Windeyer for the defendant.

WOOD V. VALE.

An action of trover, to recover possession of a watch and certain articles of household furniture, retained by the defendant. It appeared that the plaintiff's wife had died in the early part of the present year, and by defendant's advice he left his furniture in an empty house belonging to defendant. He instructed defendant to sell a portion of the furniture to pay funeral expenses, &c., and some of the goods were sold accordingly, but, as plaintiff averred, the expenses had not been paid. He had endeavoured to obtain possession of the remainder of the furniture that belonged to him, but had not succeeded. Defendant, who had married the stepdaughter of plaintiff, averred that plaintiff gave the goods now claimed to his (defendant's) wife. Plaintiff denied this statement. Witnesses were called, and after hearing a good deal of evidence his Honor found for the defendant, for whom Mr. S. C. Brown appeared. Mr. Isaacs for plaintiff.

KAVANAGH V. MARSHALL AND WIFE.

Plaintiff claimed £7 1s. for goods sold and delivered. Defendant denied the receipt of the goods. The evidence was very conflicting, and eventually his Honor found for the plaintiff for 8s. 10d. Mr. Doak for plaintiff, Mr. Deane for defendant.

KORFF V. BRUSH.

A claim for 15s. Verdict for plaintiff by default.

STUART V. POLACK.

An action upon a promissory note for £45 10s. Defendant pleaded no consideration, and that he had not received notice of dishonour. The same case was tried before Mr. Judge Cheeke in the February sittings of the Court, and plaintiff was nonsuited. His Honor now found for the plaintiff for the amount claimed. Mr. Richard Johnson for plaintiff; Mr. Cory for defendant.

MAYHEW V. GANNON.

This was an action to recover the sum of £3, expended by the plaintiff in repairing his cart, which had been injured by defendant driving his omnibus against it. It appeared from the evidence of plaintiff that, on a certain evening he was driving towards Cook's River, and was overtaken by defendant, who was driving an omnibus also towards Cook's River. Plaintiff was on the proper side of the road, and allowed defendant plenty of room to pass, but defendant negligently drove his horses so close to plaintiff's horse that the omnibus came in contact with the cart; and such was the violence of the concussion, that plaintiff and his daughter were thrown out, and the cart was considerably injured. Several witnesses were called for the defence, to prove that the occurrence was purely accidental; but his Honor being of opinion that plaintiff had made out a case for damages, gave him a verdict for the amount claimed.

LOVE V. BRADLEY.

This was an action to recover £12 for money had and received by defendant under a distress warrant. Defendant did not attend, but Mr. Maguire, on his behalf, handed in an application to his Honor to stay proceedings on the ground that defendant intended to apply to the full Court for a rule nisi. Mr. Darley, for the plaintiff, proceeded however to prove his case, and, having done so, obtained judgment for the amount claimed.

VAUGHAN V. SEAMES.

Plaintiff claimed a guinea as expenses in attending the Court on defendant's behalf, in a case tried at a previous sitting. The Judge who tried the case not having allowed witnesses, his Honor held that plaintiff could not recover, and gave a verdict for the defendant.

PICKERING V. NIXON.

This was an action for money had and received. It was tried on a previous occasion, the plaintiff succeeding, but the defendant applied for a new trial and obtained it. The defendant had collected rents for the plaintiff, and it was alleged that he had received £3 for which he had not accounted. Defendant swore that he had paid over everything that he had received on plaintiff's account. Verdict for defendant. Mr. R. Jones for plaintiff, Mr. Blake for defendant.

DOYLE V. BALDOCK.

Plaintiff claimed the balance of an account for bricks sold and delivered. Defendant admitted his liability, but asked for time.

Verdict for plaintiff (who consented to take the amount due in instalments) for amount claimed.

The verdict in the case of Martin and wife v. Madden and wife, reported in our issue of Thursday, was for the plaintiff. Damages one farthing, with costs.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Thursday.

Before their Worships the Police Magistrate, Messrs. Levey, Smithers, Birrell, and Ross

Bartholomew Larezzo was charged with having feloniously cut and wounded one Peter Cassera. Prosecutor deposed that he is a dealer, and knows prisoner only by sight; last saw him on the 15th July, at the premises of Antonio Caproni, in Pitt-street; about half-past 4 o'clock in the afternoon of that day prisoner stood near him while he washed his hands in the yard, and suddenly he felt a knife or some instrument entering his arm; he screamed and tried to escape; prisoner seized and held him by the coat until he (witness, by great exertion, released himself and ran into the shop, followed by prisoner, who, as far as witness could understand his Italian, complained of witness having told tales concerning him; witness was then in a fainting state, and was removed to the Infirmary, where he has been until this morning; he at no time gave prisoner any provocation whatever. Philip S. Jones, one of the honorary surgeons of the Sydney Infirmary, deposed that prosecutor was placed under his care on the 15th ultimo, at which time he was suffering from four punctured wounds—two on the right arm, one below the false ribs on the right side, and one about the middle of the back. The evidence was translated into Italian for the prisoner by Mr. Modini, of George-street, and Mr. Deane attended as his attorney. Committed for trial.

A man calling himself Guiseppe Marchenero, but who appears to be known to the police by more than one other name, and those of more English pronunciation, was brought before the Court by detective Camphin, who deposed that he apprehended him about 10 o'clock the previous night in the lobby of the School of Arts, having caught him in the act of attempting to pick a lady's pocket—he seized his arm while his hand was yet in the pocket, and drew it out. To be imprisoned, with hard labour, three months

James Carey was found guilty of having in his possession, and being unable to account for, a coat which, on the evidence of Louis Bornstein, of George-street, tailor, was proved to have been stolen from Bornstein's shop last Saturday week. Prisoner could not have stolen the coat, being in gaol at the time of the robbery, and was only liberated yesterday. To be imprisoned three months.

George Williams was found guilty of having for an unlawful purpose forced open the gate of premises occupied by James Earl, in Clarence-street, and secreted himself in the watercloset, between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning, and was sentenced to be imprisoned seven days.

On the summons paper were nineteen cases, seven of which were withdraw and two were struck out for want of parties, one was dismissed, and two were postponed by consent. James Robinson was found guilty, on the prosecution of Inspector Oram, conducted by the City Solicitor, of driving his licensed car after sunset, being unprovided with carriage lights, and was for his offence ordered to pay a penalty of 10s. Patrick Dacey was fined 10s. for having refused to take his right position on the stand. On the prosecution of the Inspector of Nuisances James Gannon was fined 5s., and Henry Greville was fined 10s. for permitting rubbish to be thrown upon public thoroughfares; James Baldock was fined 20s. for having unlawfully removed road material from the carriage way of Collins-street; John Richards was fined 1s. for obstructing the footway with goods. In Oram v. John Simmons, for refusing to pay dray hire, an order was made for payment of the sum demanded, with costs.

Friday.

Before their Worships the Police Magistrate, Messrs. G. Hill, Oatley, Ross, Cohen, and Hunt.

Six prisoners were brought before the Court, of whom two were discharged.

Edward Hargrave, charged with having assaulted Catherine his wife, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of £5, or to be imprisoned one month.

Ellen Kinsela and Matthew Heaney, found guilty of having in public places made use of obscene language, were each sentenced to pay 20s., or to be imprisoned fourteen days. Mary Smith, for a like offence, was ordered to pay 20s., or to be imprisoned seven days.

On the summons paper were sixteen cases, five of which were not prosecuted and one was postponed. Michael Clean appeared to answer an information in which he was charged by John Devine, of Newtown, with having embezzled and applied to his own purposes the sum of 12s., which came into his possession as the servant of him, the said Devine. Prosecutor deposed that Clean was in his service for about thirteen months, his duty being to deliver and receive payment for milk, and to account daily for all moneys received; he had a customer named M'Cann, who, according to defendant's statement on several occasions, was indebted 12s. for milk; defendant left on the 1st August, after which he (prosecutor) applied to Mrs. M'Cann for payment, and she denied that she was ever indebted to him; defendant never accounted to him for a sum of 12s. paid by Mrs. M'Cann, but up to the time of his leaving, alleged that Mrs. M'Cann owed that amount; he only knew that Mrs. M'Cann was indebted in any amount by defendant's statement. Ann M'Cann deposed that she was at one time supplied with milk by defendant, and for some months paid for it daily, but latterly paid defendant for the milk by doing his washing. Committed for trial. Mr. Cory conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Carrol the defence. The Roster.—Messrs. Burdekin and Day have been summoned for Bench duty on Saturday.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Friday.

Before the Water Police Magistrate, with Mr. M. Chapman, Mr. H. Armitage, and Mr. H. C. Burnell.

Joseph Tait, John Newlands, and John Murray, seamen belonging to the colonial barque Frowning Beauty, were convicted of disorderly conduct on board. As they did not get up in proper time this morning the chief officer stopped their usual early allowance of coffee, and they went to him using threatening and insubordinate language. Fined 40s. each; in default of payment to be imprisoned for two days.

Martin Hogan, for drunkenness and using indecent language in Riley-place, was fined 10s., with the alternative of forty-eight hours' imprisonment. Michael Coffey, for indecent exposure on the Circular Quay, was fined 20s., or to be imprisoned seven days. Mary Ann Gannon was fined 10s. with the alternative of three days' imprisonment for drunkenness and riotous behaviour in George-street. Lawrence C. Dean and Robert H. Gordon, who had been locked up for drunkenness in the streets, were admonished and discharged.

Mary Ann Black was brought up under warrant charged with violently assaulting and beating Elizabeth Williams. It appeared from the evidence that last Wednesday evening prisoner went to the house of prosecutrix, who is the wife of a waterman living in Queen's-place, dragged her from the fire-place, tearing her dress, took a cutlass out of its sheath and said she would charge Williams with having taken it to attack her with. Williams was released from the grasp which prisoner had on her hair by a boy named Clegg, who corroborated the statement of prosecutrix. Prisoner was fined £3, with professional costs of prosecution and costs of Court, in default of payment to be imprisoned for one month. On a charge of threatening the same complainant, Black was ordered to enter into recognisances to keep the peace for six months.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

Prince of Wales Theatre.—On Monday evening last, the modern play of "Leah the Forsaken" was produced at the above theatre, the character of Leah being sustained by Miss Cleveland. It will be recollected that this accomplished tragedienne appeared at the Victoria Theatre in April, 1864, and created a great sensation by her vivid impersonation of Leah. The play, though made up of incongruous characters, possesses many fine passages, and that of the heroine rises to the highest point of tragic representation. The principal incidents are those which relate to the laws at one time in existence for the oppression of the Jews,—and a romantic but not overdrawn story is built thereon. Leah is a daughter of a Jewish rabbi, and she falls in love with a Christian youth, by whom the sentiment is reciprocated; but by the efforts of his parents, and the admonition of a minister of his own faith, the Christian is weaned from the attachment thus hastily formed—to further accomplish the estrangement a deception is practised on him, the object being to show that the Jewess is actuated by purely sordid motives in her seeming love, and the death of the Jewess is the result of this cruel outrage on her affections. Few characters have been more admirably sustained than that of Leah by Miss Cleveland—and it is so uniformly good from first to last that it is almost unnecessary to refer in detail to the performance; but we cannot refrain from noticing the scene representing the marriage of Rodolph and Anna, which is the most telling in the play—the anguish on first discovering the perfidy of Rodolph, and the call for punishment in accordance with the rules of her faith on the destroyer of her peace—on the perjurer who had taken a false oath.—were marked by voice and action, at once impressive and commanding. Miss Cleveland is frequently and deservedly applauded. The part of Rodolph is sustained by Mr. Rayner, in many portions very effectively, but he occasionally oversteps the mark and descends to rant—for which the character presents no legitimate opening, as Rodolph is a man who has his passion well under control. Mr. Burford appeared as Bertolf, the renegade Jew, and in no character has he appeared more successfully. Mr. Vincent as the Burgomaster and Mr. Welsh as the Doctor were also good in the parts respectively sustained by them. The role of Anna is one that suited Miss Kate Ward and is well played throughout. The scenery and appointments are excellent, the former being very artistic; some excellent effects are produced in the third and fourth acts. "Leah" has been repeated on every evening during the week to fair houses in the face of the many other attractions. This evening the drama of the "Green Bushes" will be produced, in which Miss Cleveland is announced to sustain the character of Miami. Mr. Andrews, said to be a comic actor of considerable ability, will make his first appearance as O'Callaghan in the excellent comedy of "His Last Legs."

Victoria Theatre.—Dramatic and Ethiopian entertainments have been given during the week. In the former the leading characters have been supported by Mr. Byers and Miss Julia Hudson, and in the latter Messrs. Howson, Rayner, and Paul Maxey appear. The performances this evening are for the benefit of the Serenaders.

UNIVERSITY REFORM.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sir,—I will now fulfil my promise of pointing out how the Colleges may co-operate in carrying out the proposed changes. But first, I must protest against one of Mr. M'Arthur's very erroneous opinions. Had that learned gentleman been acquainted with University matters, he would have known that the students most likely to "cram" for their examinations are those who do attend the professor's lectures; who thereby ascertain to what points the professors attach the greatest importance, and who calculate (not without reason) that of the questions daily proposed to them, a considerable number will re-appear in their examination papers. Any one who has been lectured and examined by the same person, will admit that such a result is almost inevitable. On the other hand, a student who has not had the privilege of attending lectures, being ignorant of the examiner's favourite points, can only hope to pass by fairly mastering his subjects.

But to return to the Colleges. Mr. Moore, in his Oration, points out that when the proposed changes have been accomplished, young men engaged during the day will be enabled to reside in the colleges, and attend classes therein, at no greater expense than attends a residence in a good lodging-house. Nor is his belief unfounded. Let him produce the dozen or more fresh students that he promises to each of the colleges, and I am very sure that the colleges will gladly receive them, and, in addition to the advantages peculiar to a residence in such institutions, will guarantee them greater comfort at a lower rate than they can obtain in a first-class Sydney lodging-house.

Such students, however, could hardly have the advantage of a regular course of lectures in the colleges; for this reason, that they would take up too large a portion of the few hours which a young man who has already done his day's work could devote to evening study.

Still they would have the advantage of constant access to the college tutors, who would willingly give them all necessary advice as to the best books or portions of books to be studied, and the best mode of studying them; would help them through their difficulties, and give them such assistance and encouragement as an experienced tutor knows how to afford.

There is, however, one great obstacle in the way of this arrangement. On consulting the Acts of Parliament establishing the colleges, I find that they all contain a clause which requires that all students in the colleges shall attend the university lectures. Until this clause is repealed the colleges can do nothing. If, therefore, the reformers would carry out their wishes, they must at once agitate for the repeal of this obstructing clause. Let them do this successfully, and all true friends of the colleges will thank them for their exertions.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

A GRADUATE.

Unsettled State of Matters on the Frontier.—The South African Advertiser of 8th July states that from the Transvaal there is intelligence of as stiring a character as that from the Free State itself. A letter dated Potchefstroom, 20th June, and addressed to the Volksblad says:—If actual hostilities have not yet broken out with Ketchwayo, there is no doubt that we are on the eve of a war with that powerful chief. On the night of Friday last, two persons, Van Staden and Potgieter, residing at Utrecht, arrived at Pretoria, when the Volksraad was sitting, with the report that a large commando, numbering, according to different accounts, from 20,000 to 30,000 Zulus, had encamped not far from Utrecht, ready to pass over the line fixed two years ago by Panda and Pretorius as the boundary lines; that the Boers, both of Utrecht and environs, and of Wakkerstroom, had gone into laagers, and were every moment expecting an attack from the Zulus, under the leadership of Ketchwayo—and that therefore immediate assistance was urgently needed. They (Van Staden and Potgeiter) further communicated that Ketchwayo had previously murdered his father Panda, after repeated refusals on the part of the latter to give his permission to make war with this republic. Ketchwayo is said to be of the same nature as Chaka and Dingaan, the former Zulu kings,—a man of great courage, and very bloodthirsty. The reason why he goes to war with the republic is—firstly, because he is dissatisfied with the grant of some territory made by Panda to Pretorius; and, secondly, because he desires, according to Kaffir custom and law, to distinguish himself by deeds of valour before he ascends the throne. Very likely there is the additional inducement to make a diversion so as to keep the Boers here, and prevent their proceeding to the assistance of their brethren in the Free State against Moshesh, between whom and Ketchwayo an entente cordiale seems to prevail. The commander-in-chief, Paul Kruger, who had a couple of days before the receipt of the above intelligence been sent by the Executive to the Zoutpansberg, where also disturbances had broken out, has succeeded promptly in quelling them, killing in two or three battles a couple of hundred of the rebellious Kafirs. He was immediately thereupon ordered to Wakkerstroom and Utrecht, whither he proceeded a few days ago with a body of men to take measures in defence of the country. The people have been commandeered in all directions, except in that of Mohoera, who is not trusted. The force of the country, ranging under their respective field-cornets and commandants, will move as rapidly as possible to the front. It is as yet impossible to say what will be the strength of our commando. According to a private letter from Bloemfontein, an express had arrived at that place, mentioning that Paul Kruger, with 1800 men, having found that there was no danger from the Zulus, was about to proceed to the assistance of the Free State.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH, Westminster, June 15.

Sittings in Banco, before the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Shee.

LORD GILBERT KENNEDY V. THE PANAMA, NEW ZEALAND, AND AUSTRALIAN ROYAL MAIL COMPANY (LIMITED).

This was an action to recover £3200, paid by the plaintiff to the company, upon application by him for 1600 shares in their company, upon a prospectus issued by them representing that they had entered into a contract with the Government of New Zealand for a monthly mail service between Sydney, New Zealand, and Panama. Before the end of December last issue was joined, and the case was set down for trial. In February last the company had obtained an order for a commission to examine the Hon. Crosbie Ward and other witnesses in New Zealand, who had been in office as Postmaster-General there, and who, it was said, had entered into the contract with the company. It appeared on the affidavits that the Hon. Crosbie Ward, in March, 1863, was once in this country with certain credentials and limited powers to make a contract to carry the mails between Great Britain and New Zealand by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and in December, 1863, entered into negotiations with the company, which ended in his signing a contract with them, which, it was said, was for a subsidy of £63,000 a year. The commission—the order for which had been obtained in February last—had not since been carried out or acted upon; and a rule had been obtained to set it aside, on the ground that it had been obtained only for the purpose of delay, and that the matter rested entirely upon documents which, it was said, were all in this country, and were perfectly available in evidence without a commission to New Zealand to examine witnesses, especially as admissions were offered on the part of the plaintiff that the company up to a certain day, when an opinion of counsel was given in this country to the contrary, believed that Mr. Ward had authority to enter into the contract, contenting himself with relying on their continuing their representation after they had obtained that opinion, which was against the authority they represented to exist. Thus it will be seen there was no denial that Mr. Ward had, in fact, signed such a contract, and the only question was as to his authority to enter into it, and the knowledge or belief of the company as to his authority. Under these circumstances,

Mr. Thomas Jones, on the part of the company, showed cause against the rule to rescind the order for a commission, insisting that the commission was necessary for their case. It was, he said, contended on the part of the company that according to the Constitution of New Zealand Mr. Ward had authority to bind the Government by his contract, and that there had been a delegation of power to him from the Governor—a document which was in New Zealand, not in this country, and could only be obtained in New Zealand. The company desired, moreover, to examine Mr. Ward, with a view to show that his statements up to the time of the issuing the prospectus relied on were such as to justify their representations of his authority. There was, the learned counsel said, a division of opinion in New Zealand on the subject of the contract, and one party were in favour of it, and another party were opposed to it; but according to the usage and practice of the colony, the Postmaster-General had authority to enter into it, and it rested, necessarily, a great deal on oral and documentary evidence to be taken in New Zealand.

Mr. Lush, Q.C., supported the rule to rescind the commission, arguing that it could not possibly elicit anything in favour of the company beyond the facts admitted and the documents in this country, and that the real object was to throw the case over the "long vacation," and thus to delay the trial of it for some months.

The Lord Chief Justice said, as the matter stood, he thought that the order for a commission should be rescinded, as the plaintiff offered to admit all that it would elicit in favour of the company. The best way would be to make the rule to rescind the order, unless within a few days the company should make it appear that there was a necessity of evidence which could only be obtained in New Zealand.

LAUNCH OF HER MAJESTY'S IRON-CLAD FRIGATE LORD WARDEN.

On Saturday last another important addition was made to our fleet of iron-clad vessels of war by the launch from Chatham Dockyard of the fine wooden armour plated frigate Lord Warden. The ceremony attracted an unusually large concourse of spectators. The chief novelty noticeable in the Lord Warden, as she lay on her cradle, was her long bow, thrust out far in advance of the stem of the frigate. This projecting prow, hidden as it will be under the water, will take fatal effect on any ship with which the Lord Warden may be brought into contact, should she ever be used as a ram for running down purposes. While adapted for offensive purposes, it plays the double part of giving strength and buoyancy to the heavy bow above the water, on which is placed a battery. Unlike most of the iron-clad frigates hitherto constructed, the Lord Warden was launched with a considerable portion of her armour-plating already bolted to her sides. The remainder will be placed on the frigate as soon as she is docked. It is the heaviest hitherto applied to a wooden sea-going vessel of war, and the hull is plated well down under water, the port sills being nowhere less than 8ft 6in. above the load lines, and almost the full thickness of armour will be maintained all round the bow. The armour-plating itself is 5½in. in thickness from the lower edge to 2ft. above the water's service, and all round the battery, where the usual 4½in. armour is placed, an extra iron skin-plating, an inch and a half in thickness, has been worked upon the frames of the ship behind the outer planking. The total thickness of the sides of the Lord Warden, therefore, along her broadsides is 37in., or nearly half a foot greater than that of any other armoured frigate yet constructed. This thickness of wood and iron is obtained by 5½in. of iron, 10in. of teak planking, 13½in. of solid oak frame, and 8in. of wood planking. The thickness of the sides in the wake of the gun-battery is 33in., which is thus obtained—4½in. of armour plating, 9in. of wood backing, 1½in. of iron plate, 12in. of solid oak frame, and lastly, 6in. of planking. It will thus be seen that the Lord Warden, from the experiments made on the Lord Warden target at Shoeburyness, is capable of resisting any ordinary gun brought against her, for it will be remembered that although the target mentioned was ultimately knocked to pieces by ponderous ordnance of a kind not likely to be used in actual warfare, it was found capable of withstanding even the 300-pounder Armstrong gun firing solid round steel shot with 50-lb. of powder. The total quantity of armour which the Lord Warden will carry will be about 1400 tons. Notwithstanding this enormous weight, the important element of speed has not been sacrificed. On the contrary, her speed is to exceed that of any wooden-built frigate yet afloat, whether with or without armour, the stipulations of her designer being that she shall average, at a trial speed, 14 knots per hour. Her engines, which are now in course of manufacture, are to be of a nominal horse-power of 1000, but to be capable of working up to six times that power. The following are the principal dimensions, &c., of the vessel:—

	ft.	in.
Length between perpendiculars	280	0
Length of keel for tonnage	233	11½
Breadth, extreme	58	9
Breadth for tonnage	57	2
Breadth moulded	56	4
Depth in hold	20	9
Distance between ports	13	0
Height of midship ports	8	6

Burthen, 4067 26-94; displacement, 7675 tons.

The Lord Warden will immediately receive her iron masts, and also her boilers, condensers, and other heavy portions of her engines and machinery, after which she will be placed in one of the vacant docks at Chatham, to have the remainder of her armour-plating bolted to her sides, and to be equipped for sea, an operation which will occupy from four to six months. One of the new class of Amazon steam-frigates, unarmoured, to be named the Blanche, is to be commenced on the slip at Chatham Dockyard from which the Lord Warden was launched.—Mitchell's Steam Register, June 2.

The Mail Service between India and Australia.—The Mauritius Gazette, commenting upon the Eastern route, says:—To ensure more punctuality we should have better steamers between this and Suez, and the Union Company should make allowance for the contrary winds and boisterous weather often met with on the passage up by putting more powerful steamers on their line. We have full reliance in the spirited Union Company, as it is expected ere long some proposal will be made for extending the service from this island to Ceylon, in order that we may profit by the Indo-European telegraph, and also secure by the same means a better communication with India and Australia.

A woman was killed a short time ago, by lightning, while walking through the Gallowgate, Glasgow. Her clothes were literally torn into shreds, and singed in some places; but, with the exception of a slight oozing of blood from her mouth and one of her ears, there were no injuries apparent.

There has been very little business doing in the share market this week, and the fluctuations in prices are very trifling. Bank shares continue in favour. Sales of the shares of all our colonial banks have been made at last week's rates, and as buyers preponderate prices are inclined to rule higher. In steam shares the only transaction has been in Australasian Steam Navigation shares, which have declined 10s. per share. Insurance shares are quiet; United Fire and Marine have declined 2s. 6d. per share: Pacific and Sydney Fire and Marine shares are inquired for at last quotations. The following are the prices at which sales have been made during the week: Union Bank, £52 per share; Commercial Bank, £51 15s. and £51 17s. 6d. per share; Bank of New South Wales, £42 per share; Australian Joint Stock Bank, £14 15s. per share, new shares £5 5s. per share; City Bank, £10 7s. 6d. per share; Australasian Steam Navigation Company, £16 per share; New South Wales Marine Assurance Company, £4 per share; United Fire and Marine Insurance Company, £1 9s. and £1 7s. 6d. per share; Peak Downs Copper Mine, £1 per share; Hartley Kerosene and Paraffine Oil Company, £1 paid, £2 per share.

DEBENTURES.—In New South Wales Government debentures there have been no sales this week, and prices are nominal. New Zealand Government debentures have been sold at 100½ and interest.

A special general meeting of the shareholders of the Commercial Bank was held to-day, at noon, Mr. E. Knox in the chair. A resolution with regard to retiring directors was passed, to the following effect:—"That clause 49 of the Deed of Settlement be altered, by striking out the words, 'Shall not be re-eligible until the general meeting which shall be held in the month of July in any year subsequent to the time of his going out of office,' and substituting therefore the words, 'Shall be eligible for re-election.'"

A special general meeting of the shareholders of the Fitz Roy Iron Works Company was held to-day, at half-past 2 o'clock, Mr. E. Vickery in the chair. The following resolutions were agreed to unanimously:—

1. That, in the opinion of this meeting, clause 49 of the Act of Incorporation gives full power to any general or special general meeting to authorise the Board of Directors to issue and allot any new or forfeited shares as preferential shares; to decide in what manner they shall be preferential, and upon what terms and conditions they shall be issued.

2. That in view of the absolute necessity of providing further capital for extending the foundry, erecting rolling mills, sinking the coal shaft, and otherwise developing the enterprise, the Board of Directors are hereby authorised to issue and allot any number of forfeited or other shares not exceeding in number 3400, the property of the company, at par, as preferential shares, entitled to interest from the date of payment at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum. That in the event of a dissolution or winding-up of the company, such shares shall be entitled to be paid out of the assets of the company twenty shillings in the pound and interest, before any distribution shall be made in respect of unpreferential shares.

3. That the Board of Directors is hereby authorised to decide upon what terms and conditions of payment the aforesaid preferential shares shall be allotted.

4. That the present proprietors have the option of taking up, within fourteen days, these preferential shares, in the proportion of one to three of their present stock, but not after the expiration of that time.

The meeting was well attended, and most of the shareholders present agreed to take up some of the new shares.

A prospectus has been issued of a new gold and silver company, called the Bergalia Mineral Reefs Company. The capital is to be represented by 30,000 shares of £1 each, only 8000 of which are open for sale by the company, the rest being appropriated. Applications will be received until the 9th of September. Ten shillings per share is to be paid on allotment, and the remainder by one and two months' equal instalments from that period.

Business continues dull, and since our monthly Summary was published there is scarcely any alteration of importance to notice in our markets. The flour market remains steady, and if it were not for the supplies which have recently arrived, and which are expected, from Chili, prices must have ruled higher, stocks being still small. Chilian flour is quoted at £18 10s. to £19 10s. per ton; Adelaide, £21 to £22 per ton. Wheat is not so firm. Chilian, 8s. 3d. to 8s. 6d. per bushel; Adelaide, 9s. 6d. per bushel.

In liquids the principal feature has been some very large speculative purchases of rum, at slightly reduced rates.

Sugars are firm. At auction to-day the cargo of Mauritius sugars ex Gordon was sold at the following prices:—Fine counters, £38 to £39 5s.; yellow ditto, £36 to £36 15s.; bright rations, £30 to £33 10s.; low ditto, £27 10s. to £29.

Teas continue firm. Fine congous ex Fanny Nicholson were sold at auction to-day at 2s. 2d. per lb.

TALLOW.—This market continues very firm, and the advance noticed last week has been fully maintained. At auction, to-day, 277 casks of tallow were placed at the following prices:—Beef, £32 to £34 10s.; mutton, £35 7s. 6d. to £36 2s. 6d per ton.

HIDES are without any alteration. About 2400 were offered at auction to-day, and about 2000 sold at 4s. 9d. to 15s. each.

The following was the result of the sales held to-day:—

Messrs. Mort and Co. sold to-day, by auction, 58 casks of tallow, at £33 to £34 per ton. Hides: About 1000 were placed at from 5s. to 13s. each; hair, 5½d. to 7½d. per lb.

Messrs. Irwin and Turner sold to-day, by auction, 140 casks of tallow, at £33 to £34 per ton; the latter price was given for one lot of 76 casks of beef. Station, 33s. to 33s. 9d. Hides: About 850 were sold at 4s 9d to 15s each, calfskins 2s 5d each, corns 5s 6d to 7s 3d, shankbones £5 15s to £7 15s per ton. They also sold two casks of black oil at £60 per ton.

Mr. O. B. Ebsworth sold to-day by auction 10 casks of mutton tallow at £36 2s 6d per ton.

Mr. James Graham sold to-day by auction 69 casks of tallow at the following prices:—Beef, £32 15s to £34 10s per ton; mutton, £35 7s 6d per ton; hides, 231 were sold at 7s 9d to 12s 2d each; calfskins, 1s 6d each.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench sold by auction 177 acres, known as Maryvale, near Liverpool, for £475; and the following portions of the Collingwood estate—a paddock of 144 acres, for £235, and 30 acres, from £4 10s. to £11 per acre. The Sophienburgh estate was bought in, but negotiations are pending for a private sale. The same firm has also closed contracts, during the week, for an allotment, town of Bathurst, £51; an allotment, near the factory, Parramatta, £12; allotments, Forest Lodge estate, Glebe, 45s. per foot; and Garryowen House and grounds, Balmain Road, £5700 cash, Mr. John Gordon, purchaser.

Messrs. L. E. Threlkeld and Co. sold by auction the cargo of Mauritius sugar, just arrived per Gordon, comprising fine white and yellow counters, bright and second quality rations; also, the balance of fine congou teas, ex Fanny Nicholson. There was a large attendance of the trade, and nearly the whole of the sugars were placed at improved rates. The fine counters realised £38 to £39 5s. per ton; yellow counters, £36 to £36 15s.; bright rations, £30 to £33 10s.; low rations, £27 10s. to £29. The fine congous realised 2s. 2d. per lb.; China preserves, 24s. 6d. case; new walnuts, 3½d. per lb. The same firm sold on the Grafton Wharf, the cargo of Hobart Town timber, ex Union, at full market rates.

COMMERCIAL.

STOCK AND SHARE CIRCULARS.

W. HOPKINS.—The share market is still inactive; the only demand is for bank shares at last prices, but holders are indisposed to sell except at advances which cannot be realised. The Pacific Assurance Company has resolved to increase the nominal capital from £500,000 to £1,000,000, by the issue of 10,000 new shares of £50 each. The prospectus of a new mining company, to be called the Bergalia Mineral Reefs Company, has been issued; capital, £30,000, in shares of £1 each; 8000 shares to be offered to the public; the property is leasehold, and is situated at Moruya; the reefs are said to be rich in gold and silver. My sales consist of New South Wales Bank shares, at £42; City Bank shares, at £10 7s 6d; Peak Downs Copper shares, at 20s.—August 25th.

LENNON AND CAPE.—Business in our share market continues quiet, and sales are principally confined to Bank stock, which is in good demand, but limited supply. The share lists of the Currawang Copper Mining Company and Glanmire Gold Company close on the 31st instant. Our sales during the week have been in Australian Joint Stock Bank, £14 15s; ditto ditto, new issue, £5 5s; City Bank, £10 7s 6d; Peak Downs Copper Company, £1; New Zealand Government Debentures, 8 per cent., 100½ and interest.—August 25.

W. CRAVEN.—This has been a quiet week in the share market. There has been a demand for bank stock, but few transactions. Commercials have been placed at £51 15s, and I notice sales at £51 17s 6d. At a special meeting of the Commercial Bank this day, it was decided that the 49th clause of the deed of settlement should be altered so as to enable retiring directors to be eligible for re-election. In steam stock there is no movement, and in insurance but little. Sydney Insurance are in demand at £2 5s. I have placed United at £1 9s. In mining there is no change. I have placed Hartley Kerosene, £1 paid up, at £2.—August 25.

J. MULLENS.—The share market is rather quieter this week, but principally from want of stock for sale. Bank shares are still readily taken up at current rates, and there is a moderate demand for some of our insurance stocks. My sales this week have been—Australian Joint Stock Bank shares, at £14 15s; Bank of New South Wales shares, at £42; Commercial Bank shares, at £51 7s 6d; Union Bank shares, at £52; Australasian Steam shares, at £16; New South Wales Marine shares, at £4; United Insurance shares, at £1 7s 6d; Peak Downs Copper shares, at £1.—August 25.

PRODUCE, STOCK, AND STATION CIRCULARS.

MORT AND CO.—Wool: There is really nothing to report in this market for the current week. The quantity to hand is very limited, and consists of odd bales of mixed and inferior wools, with a few bales of fleece and scoured wools. Prices are nominal; nor can we look for any activity until the new clip begins to arrive. The attendance at to-day's sales was very limited, and the bidding languid. Sheepskins maintain their prices. We quitted about 4000 at from 4½d to 8d. Tallow: The high rates noticed in our last week's report are still maintained, the competition on the part of foreign buyers still operating indeed, medium quality ruled a shade higher at the sales to-day, the trade being compelled, in some instances, to buy in order to keep up stock for home manufacture. Best beef brought £33 15s to £34 10s; medium quality, £32 10s to £33 5s; mutton, £35 7s 6d. Hides: No alteration to note. We sold about 900 at the following rates:—Inferior to dry and medium, 5s to 8s 6d; fair to good, 10s to 13s. Hair, 5½d to 7½d per lb. Produce Sale: Wool: Mixed, AJD, 1 bale at 8½d; fleece, D over Mount Rodney, 5 at 17d; ditto, L over Mount Rodney, 5 at 17d; ditto, M over Youghs Creek, 8 at 14½d; scoured, Ifield Firsts), 7 at 21½d; ditto, Ifield (Seconds), 2 at 16¼d, 1 at 8½d. Hair: 3 bags at 6½d, 3 at 7½d. Lard, 3½d.—August 25th.

IRWIN AND TURNER.—Wool: The quantity brought forward for the sale of this week was unimportant, and barely worthy of notice. Quotations are about the same as last week. Our sale of yesterday resulted as follows:—Mixed, RG, 1 bale at 9½d; ditto, B, 1 at 2½d; washed, W&M, 2 at 6½d; fleece and broken, ML&Co, 3 at 16½d; mixed, ditto, 1 at 10½d; ditto, ditto, 7 at 9½d; skin, MR, 6 at 13½d; skin, ditto, 2 at 7¼d per lb. Sheepskins are without alteration in price. We sold at auction about 4000 thus: WHW, 11 bundles at 7¼d; FL, 20 at 7½d; RG, 1 lot at 6½d; N, 1 bundle at 4½d; Q, 1 at 5½d; DC&Co, 2 at 4½d; BS, 14 at 5½d; TH, 1 lot at 6½d per lb. Tallow: The demand continued good for export at the advanced rates noted in last week's report. 140 casks were catalogued and sold thus:—JT, 2 casks at 33s; TH, 3 at 33s 3d; F&W, 6 at 33s; FB, 15 at 33s 6d; T, 8 at 33s 6d; M, 2 at 33s 6d; EL, 3 at 33s; W, 6 at 33s 6d, 76 at 34s; N, 3 at 33s 3d; ditto, 7 at 32s 9d; H, 2 at 33s; DC&Co, 2 at 33s; ditto, 5 at 33s 9d; CN, 2 casks black oil at £60 per tun. Hides: This market remains much the same as last week. About 1100 were submitted, and 850 sold. One prime lot realised 15s per hide. Prices ruled thus:—11 at 9s 5d, 120 at 12s, 65 at 10s 6d, 9 at 4s 9d, 51 at 10d, 110 at 15s, 113 at 11d, 93 at 11s 9d, 242 at 11s 4d. Calfskins at 2s 5d each. Horns: 5s 6d to 7s 6d per 100. Shankbones: £5 15s to £7 15s per ton.—August 25th.

O. B. EBSWORTH.—Wool: The quality of the various lots catalogued to-day was not such as to call forth any special remark; there was nothing to fairly test the market, and prices must be reported quite nominal. Sheepskins in limited supply, but fellmongers are not anxious to operate at any advance on late rates. Tallow: Owing to the demand being greatly in excess of the supply, prices have advanced considerably during the past three or four weeks, and at last sale, best beef realised 34s, and mutton £35 to £36 2s. 6d. per ton; soap and station selling according to quality and packages, at from 30s to 33s. Hides: Best heavy and extra weights being required for home consumption, the prices for such have been maintained, to the exclusion of purchases for England. Light, ill-conditioned, or wormeaten are very dull of sale.—August 24th.

MR. BREWSTER.—Stations: I have no transactions to report, nor do I anticipate any considerable sales being effected until the amount is ascertained at which the New South Wales runs have been appraised, which work is now being actively proceeded with. Store Cattle: The continuance of dry weather very seriously interferes with operations in this class of stock; there is a good market for store cattle for delivery at Hay, Wagga Wagga, or Deniliquin, but no one likes to undertake the risk and loss attending the droving in the present almost general absence of grass and water. Store Sheep: I have submitted some really good offers of stock of this class, which are in my hands for sale, but in general, owners are not disposed to sell until after shearing and lambing, except at rates which buyers do not feel disposed to accept, very little business will be done until after shearing.—August 25th.

L. M. HARRISON.—Fat Cattle: Number is very limited, and in consequence prices have shown a tendency upwards. Prices for prime bullocks, £6 to £7; other qualities in proportion. Fat Sheep still continue in demand, the quality for the most part not being first-class. A really prime lot would fetch 17s, but middling lots are quitted at about 13s to 16s. Store Cattle: For these I notice a steady demand for mixed mobs, of good description, delivered on the Murrumbidgee, Murray, Darling, or anywhere to the South, 40s to 55s per head can be obtained. A slight improvement is perceptible in this market. Store Sheep: As is usual at this season, but few sheep have changed hands, and prices can only be considered nominal—say, for maiden ewes, 15s to 17s; breeding ewes, 12s to 14s; wethers, 9s to 11s. There are, however, several large buyers for wethers, but holders do not feel inclined to quit before shearing, except at extreme rates.—August 25th.

THOMAS LAWSON.—Fat Cattle: Market very bare; supply far short of the demand. Best cattle to hand have realised £8, with an upward tendency, the demand for foreign markets being as brisk as ever. Fat sheep: A bare market; best flocks are worth 16s to 17s, with a tendency upward. Store sheep and Cattle are both in demand, but nothing is doing from want of rain in those districts over which they would have to travel. Horses: Good light harness and saddle hacks, for town use, are in good demand. Stations: Lightly stocked properties, both for cattle and sheep, are much inquired after, particularly in the western districts.—August 25th.

PITT AND SULLIVAN.—Fat Cattle: This market was more barely supplied than has been the case for some time past, and there was also a fair proportion of good quality, and satisfactory prices continue to rule, with every prospect of continuance. We sold prime bullocks worth £7. We have this week sold 151 head of Robinson's, at £7; 100 head, Robinson's, at £5 10s; and 12 head, Mathews's, at £5 15s. Fat sheep: We have no alteration to report in the market. Good sheep are rather scarce, and any really prime would command high rates. We quote prime wethers worth 18s.—25th August.

BREW AND CO.—Supplies of fat cattle short of the demand, middling cattle this week have averaged from £6 to £7. We disposed of two lots, one of 120 head a poor lot at £4 10s, the other 180 head Bucknell's at £6.

W. G. HENNESSY reports the following prices obtained during the week, at auction, viz.: Oat hay 4s to 4s 9d, wheat straw 3s to 4s 6d, lucerne 4s to 5s. At his Depot: Fowls, 3s 3d to 4s; ducks 4s to 5s 6d, turkeys 15s to 20s, per pair; butter (roll) 2s 3d, butter (keg) 2s to 2s 3d, bacon 5d to 7d, cheese 6½d, lard 6d per lb.; eggs 9d to 10d per dozen; milch cows, £5 to £10; calves 40s to 25s, pigs 10s to 20s, sheep 14s to 18s each; oranges 3s to 7s 3d, mandarin ditto, 12s 6d to 15s.—ANV.

F. P. MACKAY.—List of prices obtained during the past week, for live stock and produce, at the Railway Auction Produce Depot.—Milch cows £4 to £8, calves 10s to 45s, lambs 14s to 19s, pigs 12s to 50s, roasters 4s to 6s 6d; turkeys, per pair, 8s to 18s, geese 8s to 9s 6d, ducks 4s 6d to 6s 6d, fowls 2s 9d to 4s, butter (roll) per lb., 20d to 27d, (keg) 21d to 23d; eggs, per dozen, 9d to 10½d; bacon, per lb., 4d to 6½d, cheese 7d to 8½d, lard 5d to 5½d; potatoes, per cwt., 7s to 8s, tallow 28s to 32s; hides, each, 8s to 11s; sheepskins, per lb., 4d to 8d, wool (in grease) 5d to 9d; oaten hay, per cwt., 4s 6d to 5s 6d, lucerne 4s 6d to 5s, straw 2s 6d to 4s 6d.—August 25th.—ANV.

W. H. MACKENZIE AND CO.—Oaten hay, from £5 to £5 9s per ton; lucerne, £3 15s to £4 10s; bran, £2 15s to £4 10s; potatoes, 8s per cwt.; butter, from 21½d to 26d per lb.; eggs, 9½d to 10½d per dozen; turkeys, 22s to 25s per pair; suckers, 9s 9d to 10s per pair; pork, 4d to 4½d per lb.; sheep, 18s 6d each.—ANV.

LEATHER MARKET.

W. DEAN.—Large supplies have come to hand, meeting a brisk demand throughout the week for every description, at the following prices:—Harness, 10d to 11½d; bag, 10s to 11s; bridle, 11s to 13s; strap, 8s to 10s; collar, 4s to 7s; kip, 1s 2d to 1s 5½d; sole, 6d to 10d; calf, 2s 8d to 2s 11d; yearlings, 1s 9d to 2s 2d; basils, 7s to 12s 3d; roans, 35s to 40s; English calf, 2s 9d to 3s 2d; French, 4s 3d to 4s 10d; Hobart Town kangaroo skins, 22s to 24s 6d.—August 25th.

HORSE MARKET.

BURT AND CO. report that the market is rather better supplied. A few useful lots have come in from the country, and were sold readily at prices varying from £15 to £25 for draught horses, £8 to £20 for hackneys, and £12 to £30 for light harness and carriage horses. The demand is mostly for useful horses, at prices ranging under £20.

MR. CHARLES MARTYN reports that there has been an active demand for horse stock this week, but the supply was far short of the requirements of the market. In most cases there was a brisk competition for the lots sold, and the prices obtained exhibit a slight improvement upon those of the last few weeks.

SYDNEY LABOUR MARKET.

WILLIAM BROWN.—The demand for farming men is tolerably good, and will doubtless improve as the summer season advances. For most other descriptions of servants there is not much inquiry. Applicants for situations are numerous and of a miscellaneous character, consisting principally of farm and domestic servants, mechanics, general labourers, &c. The attendance of female servants is good, and orders for this class, either for town or country, are executed with facility. Wages continue in accordance with late reports.—August 25th.

MAITLAND MARKETS.

FRIDAY, August 25.—Business.—Some of the wholesale stores have been tolerably busy during the week, executing up country orders; but business generally, both wholesale and retail, may be said to be dull. The markets are without any change worthy of note. Yesterday was observed as a general holiday, on account of the Agricultural Show at Singleton.

Teas firm. Congous, £9 to £9 10s per chest; hysonskin, £5 to £7 10s, per chest.

Sugars.—Company's No. 1, £45 to £46 per ton; crystals £52 per ton; light Mauritius, £36 to £38 per ton; ration, £32 to £34 per ton.

Oilmen's Stores.—Bottled fruits, 14s to 15s per dozen; pickles, good brands scarce, 9s to 9s 6d per dozen; sardines, ½-lb. tins 8s per dozen, ¼-lb. tins 11s 6d per dozen; English jams, 13s 6d to 14s 6d per dozen.

Carriage equal to the demand. Horse teams preferred.

Wool.—No arrivals.

Flour and Wheat.—The market for breadstuffs appears to be somewhat stationary. The late arrivals from Chili, coupled with the reports of other vessels being on their way, have shaken confidence, but as stocks are considered to be moderate for the season of the year, while the consumption is large it is generally supposed that prices will not decline much. The local business is fair. Quotations are—£22 to £23 per ton wholesale for bakers' fine. The retail rates are—25s for fine, and 23s for seconds per 100 lbs.

Maize.—Large parcels of maize have been freely purchased at 2s 9d to 2s 10d per bushel, but owing to the reported decline in the Sydney and Melbourne markets some of the principal buyers have exhibited a shyness in adding to their stocks, but others have continued purchasing at the same rates. It seems to be the general impression that the value of this article is more likely to advance than to recede, having in view the large quantities which have been shipped from the district, and the fact that present holders are mostly in a position to tide over any temporary decline without being under the necessity of selling.

Bran and Pollard.—There is still a good demand for bran and pollard. Stocks are light. Quotations, £7 per ton wholesale, 8s per 100 lbs. retail.

Hay.—The hay market is dull, and the transactions are but few in number. Quotations £3 10s to £3 15s per ton wholesale, 5s per cwt. retail.

Fruit.—Apples 7s to 13s per case wholesale, ½d to 2d each; bananas 1s 2d per dozen wholesale, 1½d to 2d each; oranges, 2d to 6d per dozen wholesale, ½d to 1d each.

Hides, dull, 7s to 12s each; sheepskins, 4½d to 6d per lb.

DENILIQUIN STOCK REPORT.

Friday evening, August 18.

THE unsettled state of the weather, and the want of an abundance of rain, tell very much against any very extensive transactions in stock. On Sunday we had slight rain, and the three following days it increased in quantity. On Wednesday it descended rather heavily for a few hours, but the white frosts at night have kept back the grass, although the days have been fine and genial. On Sunday evening it rained heavily in the Wagga Wagga district, but the fall did not extend far on the plains. We do not hear of any of the wells failing. It seems a singular fact that in some parts of the Lachlan, as we are informed, the drier the season the more water there is in the wells. Stock is coming down in fair quantities; the absence of feed along this route acts as a barrier, and some of the squatters whose runs are abutting this, the main thoroughfare, graze down the grass along the roadside. The consequence is, that much stock goes via Swan Hill, and above Deniliquin at various points. Mr. Welch's mob of fat cattle, 260, crossed on Saturday, and 600 head in charge of Mr. Hunt. We do not hear of any other cattle or sheep having crossed at Deniliquin during the week, although considerable quantities of both cattle and sheep may be expected during the next three or four months, considering the uncertainty of the weather and the want of rain. Of fat cattle, 230 (Welch's) were sold to Mr. Hunt, by Mr. Fraser Robb, for Powers, Rutherford, and Co. From Wagga Wagga, we hear that Mr. E. C. Pearson sold to Messrs. Cooke, 100 head of fat cattle, and Mr. Smith, of Kyamba, 90 head to the same parties, at full prices. Settlers here, and throughout Riverina, are asking high prices for fat cattle, which are reported very scarce. Fat sheep are in demand, and we do not hear of any sales. The following sheep and cattle are expected:—1500 fat wethers, Mr. Martin's, for which it is said that 17s were offered for 600 at Wagga Wagga; 1000 head of store cattle, reported good, belonging to Mr. Wyndham. Mr. John Jenkin's sold a fine mob of store cattle at 60s all round, and for 400 head the same price was offered. Mr. Mitchell's stock is expected. 500 head of prime cattle passed Wagga Wagga and are expected. 500 head of fat (Buchanan's) are reported between Urana and Wagga Wagga. At the latter place stock, fat and store, are reported as in demand, as well as horses. 1800 fat wethers (Rochfort's) passed Euston for Balranald on the 8th. On the 9th, 7000 mixed sheep (Armstrong's) were also at Euston in charge of Mr. Willoby. Mr. Duncan M'Rae's 3000 hoggets went the same way also for Balranald—these reported very fine. 3000 fat wethers (Mr. Phelps's) were near Swan Hill. Mr. Davenport's fat cattle, from the Albemarle station, passed Wentworth, on the 11th, for Adelaide market. Mr. Scott, of Para, is mustering—a good draft is expected, and they are under offer. Mr. Graves, for Ryan and Hammond, sold 8000 store wethers for 13s—3000 to Mr. Baillie and 3000 to Mr. John Dickson. Mr. T. O'Sullivan's fat sheep from the Lachlan are expected here in about a week. Messrs. Cunningham and Macredie sold 9000 store wethers, three to five years, to Scott and Hope at 12s 6d; also 10,000 to Mr. Hogg, mixed ages, at 11s—they are in charge of Mr. James Liscombe. The weather is still fine, with frosty nights and sunny days. The river is falling.—Pastoral Times, August 19.

ON THE DECLINE OF PHARISAISM.—We have long been of opinion that the branch of knowledge most neglected in this country is the knowledge of self, and that if a great national disaster should ever occur, it would in all probability be occasioned by our overweening Pharisaism, which has induced us to make ourselves odious to all other countries by the loudness and persistence of our thanksgiving to the Almighty that we are not as other nations are, but that England is the "wisest, virtuousest, discreetest, and best" nation under the sun. The British statesman has always held himself up as the very soul of disinterestedness and honour; the British man of business has always proclaimed himself to be the type of intelligence, energy, and honesty; the British saint has always claimed to be a far holier practitioner than the saint of any other age or clime; the British matron has always assumed to be a pattern to the rest of womankind; our soldiers have always pronounced themselves superior to the soldiers of the rest of Europe in every quality which can render a soldier formidable or admirable; and the excellence of our public-school education has, we are fondly assured by ourselves, made the English gentleman what he is—nulli secundus. The experience of the last twenty years is, however, happily bringing us to a more reasonable frame of mind. We are beginning "to see ourselves as others see us." We acquired our first lesson in self-knowledge from the Crimean campaign. When the disastrous war with Russia broke out, our military authorities fondly supposed that by hurrying a couple of thousand Guards over to Malta in such unnecessary haste that most of their dirty linen was left behind at the wash, and by announcing in the military journals that Lord Cardigan's hussars had had their swords sharpened by the Dublin cutlers—we should terrify the Autocrat of the North into speedy submission. But it is a melancholy matter of history now that the Russian Emperor was not terrified a bit by our bumptious proceedings, and that our brilliant army proved very little more fit for active service in 1853 than the tawdry fire-engine of a nobleman's country seat usually is when a fire breaks out on the premises. As long as its services are not required it looks red, and bright, and gaudy, and practical; but when called into sudden operation on an emergency, it invariably sticks fast, so corroded is its iron, so decayed is its gear, and so utterly have the firemen, whose business it is to keep it in order and work it, neglected their duty. The next disillusion to which we have had to submit has been with respect to the superior purity of the British matron. We have had to thank the late lamented Sir Cresswell Cresswell for that; and as the subject is a very delicate one, we will say no more about it than that the last time we were in Paris, the open profligacy of several English matrons of rank and position in London society, who had not yet passed through the mill of the Divorce Court, was the talk and the scandal of the French metropolis. And we are sorry to have to add to the remarks made on the conduct of those merry wives of England there was no possible reply. Recent well-known bankruptcies have pretty well disposed of the superior pretensions of the British man of business and the British lay saint—and the purity and disinterestedness of the British statesman has been aptly illustrated by the Edmunds scandal; while the Royal Commission on the public schools of England has laid bare the nature of the education which is asserted to generate better and more accomplished gentlemen than are bred elsewhere. The records of Tattersall's and Newmarket, too, daily supplement this last branch of self-knowledge. The tone of public morals in England is certainly lower than it was twenty years ago. Defaulters in money and in conduct we see freely admitted into society which formerly would certainly have rejected them; the conventional decalogue which we adopt contains many venial, few, if any, deadly sins. Indeed, it is scarcely possible to point out any one of the Ten Commandments (old style) which may not now be openly and habitually transgressed with entire impunity if the transgressor be only wealthy and influential. Possibly the condition to which our social morality is reduced merely denotes a state of transition, and that from the evil which is now rife, good may ultimately arise. Let us hope that this may be so; but in the meantime it cannot be disputed that we have been occupied so steadily in denouncing the motes in our neighbour's eyes, as to have had our attention entirely diverted from the beams which obscure our own. What should we ourselves have said but a very few months ago of the integrity and disinterestedness of the late Abraham Lincoln, if the Edmunds scandal had occurred at Washington, and if the late President and his family had occupied the same position in public attention that the Keeper of the Queen's conscience and his kith and kin are occupying here? What should we have thought of the morality of any foreign capital where the revelations with which we have become so familiar through our own Divorce Court were, as they are here, matter of daily and hourly occurrence? Scale by scale, the scales are falling from our eyes. It is to be hoped, that if we do not in time become more moral as a nation, we may at least become more humble and less offensive than we have hitherto been.—Pall Mall Gazette.

LORD WESTBURY.—"Talking of committees," I went on, "how confused the Lord Chancellor must be between them all! He must be very apt to forget when he is 'sitting' and when he is being 'sat upon.' If he had not the clearest possible head, he would be proving to the world that Mr. Edmunds was competent to teach the Zulus theology in spite of the Bishop of Cape Town, and that he was justified in giving Dr. Colenso a large retiring pension. What with having to quote texts in one committee-room and arithmetic in another, and having to explain the law of God, the law of the land, and his own conduct alternately, it is a miracle that he does not get a softening of the brain."—Blackwood.

CLARSON, SHALLARD, and CO. propose to establish a Weekly Journal for circulation throughout the Australian colonies, on the model of the best and most successful of the English Weeklies. They intend that this publication shall claim as its readers every section of the community; and embrace in its contents Original Tales, Sketches, Essays, and Poetry, with occasional contributions by, and gleanings from the works of, the first writers of the age.

It is a fact that at the present time we have not in the Australian colonies a single publication of the class here indicated—not a magazine devoted to the general reader, or to the entertainment of ladies and the youth forming so large a section of our community—no vehicle of thought wherein the literature of Australia may find a suitable abiding place.

Historical and Legendary Tales, with other Works of Fiction, combined with Sketches and Poetry of sterling merit, will form a most important feature of the work, and in each of these departments the best pens of the colonies will be engaged. Special columns will be devoted to information on the many topics interesting to ladies. Deeds of daring and skill, tending to stimulate a healthy ambition in youth, will be recorded from time to time. The progress of Science and the useful Arts will be chronicled in their place, and popular papers, upon interesting subjects not generally understood, will be written by gentlemen devoting their time to such matters. Occasional papers on the Natural History of the southern colonies will be given—written in a style as free as possible from technical terms, or tedious details. Reliable notes on Horticulture, and Instructions for the successful culture of popular flowers will be given by gentlemen having a reputation for excellence in such departments; whilst under the head of answers to correspondents will be given the fullest information possible to questions asked.

Agents will be appointed in every township throughout New South Wales, and due care taken that such agents are supplied so that subscribers may receive their copies with punctuality on the day of issue.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.—SIR,—I have read your leading article of this morning with intense admiration. It breathes throughout the spirit of true Christianity, and enlightened Scriptural charity. Religion is entirely a thing between a man's own conscience and his Maker, and, while we hold our own opinions firmly, we ought to exercise all possible courtesy and forbearance with regard to those who differ from us. To disparage any body of Christian men on account of their religious opinions, conscientiously entertained, and honestly avowed, I hold to be barbarous, unphilosophical, and un-Christian. Every man has as good a right to hold his religious opinions as I have to hold mine; and I condemn, in the strongest manner, any theological controversy which has a tendency to inflame the public mind and endanger the peace of the community. On this principle I have always acted. Not long after I came to this city, I attended a meeting of Protestant ministers, convened by private circular, for the purpose of forming an Anti-Popish Association. If I recollect right, I was the first among the twelve or fourteen ministers present to lift my voice in opposition. I knew well that if such an association was formed, an ANTI-PROTESTANT League would soon follow, and the whole community, in all likelihood, would be thrown into a state of stormy and dangerous excitement. I avow myself a firm and conscientious Protestant, and yet I admire the zeal of the Roman Catholic clergy, and from the bottom of my heart I wish them all success in doing good to the souls of men. The spirit of Christian charity, as it appears to me, is, at the present time, in great danger of being overborne. Meetings of Protestant ministers have been held, and a certain MANIFESTO is, I understand, about to be issued; and, honestly believing that there exists no sufficient reason for alarm and agitation, I have thought it to be my duty, however reluctantly, to make my sentiments known.

I am, Sir, yours most respectfully,
JOHN REID.

Sydney, August 25, 1865.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.—SIR,—Having lately received for signature a copy of a sort of Protestant Manifesto, which I should be very sorry to sign, and feeling, as a Christian teacher, strongly impelled to give some sort of utterance to my opinions on the question raised by Mr. M'Gibbon's letters, I cannot refrain from thanking you for your leading article of to-day, in all the sentiments of which I fully concur.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
JAMES EDWARD VETCH, B.A.
Congregational Minister.

Woollahra, August 25th, 1865.

MACQUARIE WARD.—To the ELECTORS of MACQUARIE WARD.—As the term for which I was elected an Alderman for your Ward will expire on the 30th November, I now most respectfully tender you my best thanks for the confidence shown towards me while in Office, and trust that I shall merit your vote and interest at the ensuing Election on December 1st. Should the honourable trust of Alderman be once more reposed in me, the experience gained of the working of the institution during my four years of office shall be faithfully devoted to your Municipal Interests with the same unremitting care and attention as heretofore.

I am, Gentlemen, yours obediently,
JOHN MACINTOSH.

CAUTION.—Chlorodyne.—In Chancery.—It was clearly proved before Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood, by affidavits from eminent hospital physicians of London, that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, which is extensively used in hospitals at home and abroad, and is affirmed by medical testimonials accompanying each bottle to be the most efficacious medicine ever discovered for fevers, dysentery, diarrhœa, consumption, coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, spasms, rheumatisms, &c. LEA and PERRINS beg to caution the public against spurious imitations of their celebrated
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.
L. and P. have discovered that several of the foreign markets have been supplied with spurious imitations, the labels closely resembling those of the genuine Sauce, and in one or more instances the name of L. and P. FORGED.
L. and P. will proceed against any one who may manufacture or vend such imitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world to advise them of any infringement of their rights.

CLEANLINESS.—A Stove most Brilliantly Polished in two minutes, for less than One Farthing.
W. G. NIXEY'S celebrated registered BLACK LEAD, a new domestic discovery. Cannot be wasted, and is a preservative of furniture from the injurious effects of the common articles now in use, as it creates no dust, and requires comparatively no labour.
Sold everywhere, in solid blocks, 1d. 2d. 4d. and 1s.
The advantages of this excellent chemical preparation are great saving of time, cleanliness of application, smallness of quality required, and the prevention of waste, dust, and its destructive consequences. Further, it ultimately produces a pure metallic coating of a high degree of brilliancy and durability, reflecting both light and heat. (See specimen on the sides of each block.) 12, Soho-square, London. Agents wanted.

WILLCOX AND GIBBS' FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.—In 1864 it competed and received nine out of ten prizes given for the best Sewing Machine in the United States. It forms a flat, even, and elastic seam, which is warranted not to rip in wear if properly sewed, when every third stitch is cut. This machine can be run but one way; two thousand stitches, or two yards of work, can be done in one minute without dropping a stitch. The machine is so simple and accurate in its construction that it supersedes the use of the noisy shuttle, and with one thread produces all the practical results of the two-thread machines, and more, for it fells without basting, and hems the finest muslin without puckering. It will sew perfectly from one to thirty-two thicknesses of calico without alteration of tension. The highest colonial testimonials can be given of their practical working. S. HEBBLEWHITE, 432, George-street, and 292, Pitt-street.

WHEELER AND WILSON'S Prize Medal New Improved SEWING MACHINES.
The distinguishing feature in this machine is the making of the TIGHT LOCK STITCH by the ROTATING HOOK, an improvement on the shuttle, whereby all heavy and noisy action is avoided, which makes it noted above all other machines for simplicity and general effectiveness; in proof of which, the machine gained a First-class Prize Medal at the London Exhibition of 1862; also, the Paris Gold Medal in 1861; and the numerous testimonials received from persons in all parts of the colonies amply testify to its excellence. Its complete superiority is fully shown in the following
It fells or hems any width, turning its own hem as it stitches.
Gathers any kind of material with any quantity of fullness.
Gathers and sews on a band at the same time without basting.
Embroiders in beautiful designs, with cord, braid, or silk.
Sews in cord without basting.
Hems, enclosing a cord at the same time, without basting.
Binds any material without basting.
Marks any width of tucks, and stitches them without basting.

NOTE THE ADDRESS.
W. C. RENWICK,
273, Pitt-street, fourth door from Market-street.

M'CARROLL, CUMBERLAND-STREET.
Were you round by M'Carroll's last Saturday night,
It was well worth a walk to go there,
In the whole of the town there was not such a sight,
For Pitt-street was just like a fair.
It seemed there was no other shop in the place,
That he had all the trade in the street,
The people appeared to be running a race,
To see who should be first for their meat.
When they lit up the gas the shop was borne down,
Huge carcases hanging around,
Enough one would think to feed all the town,
And more were they there to be found.
But lo! such a storm on the shambles was made,
Men, women, and children were there;
Such cutting and serving, such rapid large trade
Very soon left the shop nearly bare.
Reinforcements came in from the Redfern depot,
Carts laden again for the night;
Next week there again I'm determined to go,
For I truly enjoy such a sight.
But yet it's no wonder he does such a trade,
At the sales he buys none but the best,
And after the choice of the primest he's made,
He'll let any one else have the rest.
Then, look at his prices—just one-half below
All the other shops now in the town;
Common sense, then, points out to the man they should go;
It's M'CARROLL that keeps the meat down.

The GORDON is furnished with complete suits of sails, standing and running rigging, anchors, chains, &c., and is fitted with patent self-reefing topsails and many other late improvements; she is a very fast vessel, and requires but a small quantity of ballast; and as she has one month's stores on board, comprising every requisite, she could be sent to sea at once, without incurring any additional expense.

Important to the Capitalists and Public of Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, and the Colonies.

Unprecedented Opportunity of Securing
FRONTAGES TO THE RIVER BRISBANE,
at
BEULAH FARM, BRISBANE.

DICKSON and DUNCAN have been favoured with instructions from the Proprietor, J. Childs, Esq., to submit to public competition, at their Auction Mart, Queen-street, opposite the General Post-office, on MONDAY, 18th September, at 11 o'clock,
BEULAH FARM ESTATE,
known as part of portion 58 and portion 61, parish of
NORTH BRISBANE,
subdivided into allotments fronting the
VALLEY, AND BREAKFAST CREEK ROAD, AND THE RIVER BRISBANE.
The value of this most attractive property is universally acknowledged, and the
FRONTAGES TO THE RIVER BRISBANE
have long been admitted to be the very finest
WHARFAGE ACCOMMODATION that can be obtained about Brisbane; while for DOCKS, SLIPS, SAW-MILLS,
or any other similar purpose, the general character of the land is not approached by any other part of the metropolis or suburbs.
The allotments have each one chain frontage to the river, which at this particular spot is deep along the banks, and of great width.
The attention of all interested in water frontages is directed to these most valuable allotments, as they must become the great wharfage depot of Brisbane, in proof of which it may be mentioned, and can be readily ascertained on inspection, that many trading vessels and steamers from the Bay cast anchor at this particular spot, and in the absence of wharves, land and receive stores, &c., &c., at the foot of Stratton Road, Bulimba Ferry.
The proximity to the heart of the city and the transit of goods to and fro is so convenient and facile, that it must be evident, so soon as wharfage accommodation is here provided, no vessels will proceed further up the tedious reaches of the river to the city, a distance of some seven miles.
The allotments fronting the Valley and Breakfast Creek roads offer most desirable sites for residence, which must ultimately become exceedingly valuable as business stands—the traffic along this road increasing daily at a rate which cannot be equalled by any other of the great thoroughfares leading out of the city.
With the increasing marine of this port, the wharfage accommodation now obtainable is daily becoming too limited; while docks must become an absolute necessity in the course of a few years. No other property about Brisbane offers such undeniable advantages for the above purposes as and the attention of the capitalists of Queensland and the neighbouring colonies would be profitably directed to this most important sale.

There is an orchard of about 4 acres, enclosed with a wall, and a fine open piece of land, containing about 3 acres, known as the Pigeon Ground.

 ORMEAU VIEW is so well known that it is not necessary to comment on its value as a suburban property. It occupies, without exception, the most beautiful position on the North Shore, and commands a fine view of Sydney and the harbour, as well as of the more immediate enchanting romantic scenery. A boat may be obtained at the Hunter's Hill side of the river, on calling out to the man in charge of Ormeau.

TUESDAY, 12th September.

FOR POSITIVE SALE.
By Order of the Trustees of the Will of the late Mrs. NASH.

TOWN OF PARRAMATTA.

That celebrated first-class commodious Hotel, THE WOOLPACK, Generally known as
WILLIAMS' FAMILY HOTEL,
together with that valuable block of Land on which it is erected, containing an area of about one acre and a half, at the junction of George and Marsden streets, TOWN OF PARRAMATTA.

TITLE unquestionable, for full particulars of which apply to Messrs. Abbott and Yeomans, solicitors, King-street.

TERMS—A portion of the purchase-money may, if desired, remain secured by mortgage on the property.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the TRUSTEES OF THE WILL OF THE LATE MRS. NASH to sell by public auction, on the premises, at Parramatta, on TUESDAY, 12th September, at 1 o'clock,

All that piece of land, containing one acre one rood and 38 perches, having extensive frontages to George and Marsden streets, town of Parramatta, on which are those well-known extensive premises THE WOOLPACK FAMILY HOTEL.

The house is most substantially built of brick on massive stone foundations, with slate roof, and occupies a frontage of 127 feet facing George-street, approached by a beautiful carriage drive through a lawn and shrubbery.

The entrance hall, which is 11 feet in width, is entered on by a noble flagged verandah, 127 feet in length, supported by iron pillars.

The following list of rooms will give some small idea of the extensive accommodation of the hotel.

On the GROUND FLOOR—
Dining-room 36½ x 22
Coffee-room 19¾ x 17
Breakfast room 17 x 16¾
Parlour 22 x 14¾
Sitting-room 16½ x 14½
Bedroom 17½ x 11 and dressing room
Bar-parlour and offices
A servants room
Large kitchen, fitted with two capital ranges, copper, brick oven, &c., and three servants' rooms above.

The UPPER FLOOR contains 7 bedrooms, and a large ball or assembly room, 45½ x 22½, one end of which is partioned and forms 2 other bedrooms.

In the BASEMENT are spacious cellars, at the rear in the yard are 2 good stores and a double coach-house.

The STABLING is very complete, and certainly more extensive and perfect in arrangements than any in the colony. It consists of two parallel lofty ranges of stone-built premises, with slate roofs; the space between the buildings being covered in with a galvanised corrugated iron roof, and forming a very commodious repository for carriages, &c.; each range comprises a stable containing nine well-finished stalls, and a loose box, or harness room, over the whole of which is a large loft, capable of containing an immense quantity of provender. The whole of the premises are well supplied with water from two wells and a large underground tank, into which the roof water flows.

The whole of the above described buildings are in complete order, a sum of £3000 having recently been expended on the new stabling, re-roofing the house, and placing the premises in thorough repair. The back portion of the land is tastefully laid out as a vegetable garden, in which are a few full bearing fruit trees and trellissed vines, a gardener's cottage, and several well appointed out-offices.

☞ Within the limits of an advertisement it would scarcely be possible to do justice to the description of this valuable property. The accommodation of the hotel, its position on the verge of the beautiful Parramatta Domain, and at the same time in the centre of the town, opposite the Post Office, Court-house, and only five minutes' walk from the railway station, its reputation as a first class well-conducted, and patronised family house; are all well known and acknowledged throughout this and the neighbouring colonies, and it is only necessary to announce that the executors of the late Mrs. Nash's estate to carry out the intention of the trusts will most positively sell, to attract the attention of capitalists to this important opportunity for securing so favourable and remunerative an investment.

Plans of the property may be inspected, and further particulars obtained at the Rooms.

N.B.—The hotel is now in full trade, and the whole of the furniture, plate, &c., belonging to the establishment will be sold by public auction on the premises, on WEDNESDAY, 13th September, the day after the sale of the property.

SPLENDID CATTLE PROPERTIES,
BURNETT and PORT CURTIS DISTRICTS.

For Positive Sale, to close a partnership account, owing to the death of one of the partners and the expiration of term of partnership.

The following well known and extensive Cattle Stations, viz.:—

LOT 1.—MONDURAN, situated in the BURNETT and WIDE BAY DISTRICTS, on the MAIN ROAD from MARYBOROUGH to GLADSTONE (about equi-distant from each town), with substantial improvements and 6500 HEAD of CATTLE, more or less; a choice quiet herd.

LOT 2.—MILTON,

situated and embracing the whole watershed of the RIVER BOYNE, from its source to within 25 miles of its mouth, where it falls into PORT CURTIS, about 4 miles south of the important and rising TOWN of GLADSTONE.

The Improvements on Milton are well built, and comprise every requisite for working a large property.

With this Station will be sold
14,000 HEAD OF CATTLE, more or less.
A very superior Herd, chiefly bred from the noted D in diamond brand, from the RICHMOND RIVER.

 All the above Cattle will be mustered and delivered and Calves under 6 months old given in. Stores, Drays, Teams, Working Stock, and all Belongings to be taken by Valuation in the usual way.

Terms liberal.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from Messrs. FANNING, GRIFFITHS, and CO., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 6th of October next, at 11 o'clock,

The above magnificent cattle properties.

LOT 1.—MONDURAN STATION.—This valuable property consists of seven large contiguous blocks or runs, well grassed and watered, embracing an immense area of rich grazing and fattening country, estimated to carry a very large number of stock in all seasons. It is in the immediate vicinity of Messrs. Wilson and [illegible] property, and the noted GIN GIN Station, whilst it also adjoins the property of Messrs. Robertson, Brothers, upon which is erected a first-class BOILING-DOWN ESTABLISHMENT for the use of the public.

The IMPROVEMENTS are very substantial. They comprise a well-built DWELLING-HOUSE, stable, smithy, and all necessary outhouses, a first-rate stockyard, capable of working a large herd, with every convenience for branding, spaying, &c.; several miles of most substantial fencing has been put up, and other heavy expenses incurred to make this property complete in every respect.

With Monduran will be sold

6500 HEAD OF CATTLE, MORE OR LESS.

A choice well bred herd, no expense or trouble having been spared to keep up the high character of the cattle. There are now a considerable number of fat beasts ready to be brought to market.

LOT 2.—MILTON STATION.—This extensive run is situated in the PORT CURTIS DISTRICT (the head station being only a short day's ride from the TOWN OF GLADSTONE), and embraces the whole watershed of the RIVER BOYNE, from its source to within 25 miles of its mouth, having a frontage of about 30 miles to that river, besides being abundantly supplied throughout by the creeks named "Two-mile," "Six-mile," "Ten-mile," "Fifteen-mile," "Twenty-mile," and "Twenty-five-mile," besides several other streams. The character of the run is first-class, both for breeding and fattening, and its present number of stock is considered trifling compared with its ENORMOUS GRAZING CAPABILITIES. From the configuration of the country, it might be subdivided at a very small expense, into a series of breeding, weaning, and fattening paddocks, each on a large scale.

Milton is bounded on three sides by inaccessible ranges, and on the north by the Barmandoo and Iveragh Runs.

 It may be mentioned that this property has been worked with the view of increasing numbers with the least additional outlay of capital, and during the last two years the numbers have increased nearly 5000 head, while during the same period sales of fat stock have covered all expenses, including commission and interest on the money invested, and also left no inconsiderable profit.

The IMPROVEMENTS consist of a comfortable DWELLING-HOUSE, and all necessary outbuildings; extensive stock yards, substantially erected on the most approved plans; large paddocks, garden, &c.

With Milton will be sold

14,000 HEAD OF CATTLE, more or less,

a very superior herd, chiefly bred from a good selection of the well known D in diamond brand, from the Richmond River.

There are sufficient horses and mares of good quality on the station to supply all present and future requirements.

☞ Properties of the value of those described above do not require any particular comment further than the direct notice of sale; but as these extensive and valuable runs are brought into the market under peculiar circumstances—viz., "to close a partnership which has expired by effluxion of time, and which cannot be renewed or continued owing to the death of one of the partners, and hence must be realised on the day appointed"—RICHARDSON and WRENCH would beg to direct special attention to them, and to the advantages which must accrue to their purchaser.

Both properties are within a few days' post, and have easy access to a shipping port.

One has a boiling-down establishment on the next station, and the other within a short drive.

Both have had a very large increase during the year, a great proportion of which will go to the purchaser free of cost.

And both are very lightly stocked.

Neither must it be forgotten that the scarcity of cattle in the Southern Colonies, and the long prices at which contracts for forward delivery of every kind of horned stock are now being made, cannot fail to prove a great source of profit to these stations, and that for two or three years at least there is a constant market ready for every beast fit for the butcher and for store stock; and, further, that, as the property must now be absolutely disposed of, for the reasons already given, the vendors are willing to be very liberal in the terms of sale.

Intending purchasers are invited to inspect these properties, every facility for which will be afforded on the stations.

Further particulars may be obtained on application at the Rooms, Pitt-street.

KIENBRI, CASTLEREAGH RIVER.
Together with the Stock now thereon, comprising
2000 HEAD CATTLE (more or less), 50 HORSES (more or less), and the RIGHT OF BRAND.

Without any reserve.

Formerly known as the property of the late Mr. John Miller. Bounded by and in close proximity to the celebrated stations of Colin M'Kenzie, Esq., Wangan, and Messrs. Hall's, Eurawilkie.

MR. GEORGE LEE has received instructions from the mortgagee to sell by auction, at Eckford's Family Hotel, West Maitland, on WEDNESDAY, August 30th, 1865, at 12 o'clock,

All that excellent and compact squatting property long and favourably known as KIENBRI, together with the stock as above, now running thereon.

THE IMPROVEMENTS,

which are very extensive, comprise

DWELLING-HOUSE, huts, sheds, large store, stockyard capable of working the herd, and every necessary appliance for working the station;

GRASS PADDOCK,

and a large CULTIVATION PADDOCK, which supplies the station with wheat.

There is also a considerable quantity of PURCHASED LAND.

100 head of cattle, of the IM brand, are excluded from the sale.

The country for the most part consists of beautiful open box ridges, plains, and small scrubs; and there is on the run one of the best dams in the colony, and also several small springs.

The Auctioneer, in drawing public attention to this sale, would remind intending purchasers of the high price always realised from the sale of fat cattle of the noted IM brand, and would also request purchasers to view the property. And as this is a positive unreserved sale, by order of the mortgagee, persons on the look-out for small compact properties, within an easy distance of either the Sydney or Maitland markets, would do well to await the sale of this really eligible property.

Terms, liberal, at sale.

The run is well watered, and includes the celebrated waterholes, Weetalibah and Coochrane.

The Improvements—Yards and huts sufficient for working 8000 sheep.

The country may be fairly stated second to none in the colonies for fattening qualities, which fact, coupled with the sheep being nearly full-fleeced and the improvements good, renders the property particularly eligible, and presents a favourable opportunity for effecting a profitable pastoral investment.

The Auctioneer begs to direct general attention to this sale, and invites inspection of run and stock.

Terms:—One-half cash; balance by approved bills at one and two years, bearing bank interest, with security.

TERMS:—Half cash; balance by approved bills, in equal amounts, at one, two, and three years from day of sale, with interest at 9 per cent. per annum added, secured by mortgage on the stock and stations.

STOCK FOR SALE.

POWERS, RUTHERFORD and CO. are instructed by the mortgagees to sell by auction, at Peachment's, late Morton's, Hotel, Bourke-street West, Melbourne, on WEDNESDAY, 27th September next, at 2 o'clock,

THE DOTSWOOD STATION.

With the station will be sold about

3000 head of quiet well-bred cattle, of mixed ages and sexes, none of which are old or inferior, and there are at present about 600 of them fat.

The run is within 35 miles of a port and 16 miles of a township; it is capable of carrying at least 15,000 head of cattle in all seasons, and the country all round is settled on.

Although at present the only stock on the runs, with the exception of about 25 horses and two teams of bullocks, are cattle, there is a great portion of the property most admirably adapted for sheep. The improvements, which are most substantial and complete, comprising everything needed to work the station, consist of homestead, huts, yards, paddocks, &c., &c. Altogether this is a most desirable investment, and one the Auctioneers can strongly recommend to the attention of capitalists, possessing, as it does, everything requisite to make it one of the best stations in the north or west of Queensland.
